EXPORT CROPS MUCH REDUCED

(Editor's Note: This is the fifth of a series of articles prepared by the extension service at Oregon State college on the report and recommendations of the Oregon land use planning committee on how Oregon's agricultural program may best be adjusted to meet the impacts of war and national defense.)

Oregon's agriculture has suffered severe losses through the gradual but almost total elimination of export outlets for some of the principal crops of this state, even though growers have gone far in reducing the acreage of export-type crops, the Oregon state land use planning committee points out in its summary of present conditions and recommendations for the immediate future.

Wheat, prunes, apples and pears are the principal export crops of this state. During the past decade wheat acreage has been reduced approximately 24 per cent, prunes 26 per cent, apples 55 per cent and pears 10 per cent. This means that Oregon's export crops, which formerly accounted for approximately 30 per cent of the total farm acreage, now occupy only about 20 per cent.

There remain approximately 800,000 acres of wheat, 41,400 acres of prunes, 14,100 acres of apples and 19,000 acres of pears. Under normal conditions, about one-third of the production of this total acreage would go to foreign markets, with two-thirds used in the United States.

The state committee considered each one of these crops as to the problems involved and possible action to be taken. A number of its recommendations for 1942 concerning wheat have already been put into effect by the AAA, including close correlation of acreage reduction with soil conservation, increase of loan values to nearer parity, and reduction of acreage allotment for 1942 to the minimum provided by law.

Further reduction in apple acreage through the elimination of varieties not now in demand is recommended, while change in pear acreage might be limited to removal of diseased trees. Immediate and drastic improvement in prune quality is necessary to save the prune industry, the committee reported.

HINDSIGHT ON SPORTS

By I TOLD YOU SO

Having been correct in the prediction that Sam Berry would get the coaching job at the University of Southern California after the untimely death of Howard Jones, this column chooses to venture further and predict that Charlie Jandreau, the brilliant little Ashland high football star, will again play football for AHS contrary to rumors. Still further, we predict that Jandreau will turn in the best performance of his grid career.

Among the latest coaches of Oregon high schools to be inducted into the US army are Mark Temple of The Dalles and John Londahl of Franklin high in Portland.

Jacksonville should go a long way in the county six-man football league and the class B basketball league this season what with the addition of Leonard Warren to the teaching faculty. Warren is a well-known athlete around southern Oregon and, working with Coach Leonard Patterson, things just can't go wrong.

It looks like Stanford or Washington will rule the roost in Pacific coast football circles this fall. But if Oregon gets over the first game with Stanford, watch the Webfeet go to town.

Frankie Roelandt, the 16-year-old catcher for the Medford Craters, is leading the club in batting with an average of .407 for the season, up to last week-end.

Bob Hardy, Ashlander with the Beaumont Exporters of the Texas league, is alternating between right field and pitching duties.

Coach Howard Hobson, formerly of the Southern Oregon College of Education and now head man for Oregon basketball and baseball teams, announces that he will take his Webfeet basketball team on a tour of the east for the fourth consecutive year. Their eastern schedule follows:

- Dec. 10—Wayne at Detroit.
- Dec. 11—Canisius at Buffalo.
- Dec. 13—Long Island at New York.
- Dec. 15—Temple at Philadelphia.
- Dec. 16—Duquesne at Pittsburgh.
- Dec. 17—Xavier at Cincinnati.
- Dec. 19—DePaul at Chicago.
- Dec. 22—Nebraska at Lincoln.

Craters, Silverton In First-Place Tie

Giving up eight hits and striking out 10 batters, Dutch Lieber pitched the Medford Craters to a 7-4 Oregon state league win over the Eugene Athletics at Eugene Sunday afternoon. The game officially ended the second half of the pennant race and found the Craters and Silverton in a first place tie. Manager Lou Sauer's home run with two on bases gave the Craters their winning margin. Medford dropped the exhibition game Saturday night 10 to 0.

Silverton barely edged out Bend 7 to 6 while Albany took two from Toledo 10 to 1 and 9 to 0. The first was a make-up game.

Klamath Falls and Hills Creek were rained out at the Pelican diamond.

The Grants Pass Merchants forged ahead in the Southern Oregon league when they stopped the Medford Rogues 8 to 7 despite home runs by Dick Lewis and Billy Piche. Ex-Crater Bob Fox gave up ten hits while Lloyd Farthing allowed the Rogues nine bingles.

Manager Paul Hoffard says he is still trying to line up a series between his club and the Craters for the Medford city championship.

iate and drastic improvement in prune quality is necessary to save the prune industry, the committee reported.
