GRIZZLIES ROUT HONKERS 20-0

With Charley Jandreau, Bud Provost and Rudy Elam each accounting for a touchdown, the Ashland high Grizzlies served notice on the Southern Oregon conference by routing the Lakeview Honkers 20 to 0 at Walter Phillips field Friday night. Just so there'd be no arguments, Jandreau and Provost each accounted for a point after touchdown.

The Honkers were badly outclassed in the statistics department and only once had Ashland backed to their own territory, when Jandreau took a punt on his 11-yard line. The Grizzlies gained a net total of 180 yards to 58 for Lakeview and averaged 32 yards per punt to 28 for the eastern Oregonians. The only place in the statistics column that Lakeview outclassed the Ashlanders was in the yards lost by penalties, 20 to 15.

Klamath Falls bested Grant of Portland 7 to 6 and Medford got over Weed 35 to 6. North Bend and Grants Pass played to a 6-6 tie.

RURAL TRENDS

There is a homely old saying, something our fathers used to say to keep us from eating too much—"your eyes are bigger than your stomach."

Maybe it would be a good thing if some of us farmers had a friendly warning like that whispered in our ear.

The history of business is full of instances where a man may have been very successful in running a small store or a small factory. Then he got ambitious to become bigger, and in the process, suffered a good many growing pains.

Sometimes it isn't easy to see where running a big business—or a big farm—differs from running a small one. The difference is a great deal more than merely dealing with larger figures. Success and profit are not always in direct proportion to the size of the enterprise.

Let's look, for example, at the man who makes a success out of a family farm of 100 to 200 acres. He does well with it because his management gets into the details of the farm's work. He can watch everything. He has only one or two hired helpers to oversee. Often all the work is done by members of the family. The whole operation is flexible and adaptable, because it is always under the direct eye of the owner—under control.

Now put the same man on a farm of 500 acres. The picture changes. Parts of the farm are a mile away from headquarters, a mile away from the house and the main barn. There is more help to be watched—more planning to be done.

No matter how good a farmer that man is, he can no longer watch everything, and still find time to do his share of the work. Important small things are likely to be overlooked or get away from him. It is harder to get the work done on time. It is harder to prevent the small losses and wastes that mean so much in the year's profits.

The job of bringing the crops to market is bigger. There is more investment of time, work and money in a single crop than before. Therefore a greater part of the farmer's stake is at the mercy of the weather, or of changing market conditions.

We have heard of a good many successful small farmers who were pretty thoroughly disappointed with the results of bigger operations. They found that profits did not always increase with the size of the farm, even though the cares and the worries did increase. And the hazards, too.

Of course, there are many instances of successful large farm operations. We are not presuming to advise anybody against "taking in more territory."

But we do want to advise you, if you are thinking in terms of making more money with a larger farm, to think it over pretty carefully before you take the jump. Look at every angle, and be sure you don't "bite off more than you can chew."

The multiplication table that we all learned in primary school is a mighty useful invention. The trouble is that you cannot always apply the multiplication table to farming operations and be sure of getting the right answer.

A great big share of the farms in America are average size family farms. There is a reason for that. Such farms represent about all the average farmer can take care of, and do it well.

And remember this: There is no better place to live, and to bring up a family, than the American family-size farm.

HINDSIGHT ON SPORTS

By I TOLD YOU SO

I Told You So's warm-up for the football season wasn't so hot last Friday with seven games prognosticated and four being correct. The percentage to date stands at 57 1/2.

But the nerve is up in picking the following 10 hopes for the week-end:

At Berkeley, California is favored to win over the strong St. Mary's eleven Saturday.

A lot depends on Oregon's game with Stanford at Palo Alto Saturday for the season success of the Webfeet but the Indians will win out.

Southern California's new coach will win his first against Oregon State at Los Angeles Saturday.

Tonight Washington State will take the measure of UCLA's Bruins at Los Angeles.

The old neck goes out in picking Washington over Minnesota at Seattle Saturday.

Willamette over College of Idaho tonight at Salem and Idaho over Utah at Moscow tomorrow.

Medford's Black Tornado will blow to a win over a heavier Corvallis team at Medford and Klamath Falls, in her first game away from home, will lick Eugene in Eugene.

Two would be a shame for the Ashland Grizzlies to lose their first conference game with Grants Pass, what with the new grandstand being dedicated and all, but they won't.

J-Ville Team Noted In Epler Article

Coach Leonard (Pat) Patterson's Jacksonville six-man football team received national publicity recently when Dr. Stephen Epler, dean of men at Southern Oregon College of Education and originator of six-man football, wrote an article for the Athletic Journal, a national magazine for coaches. Epler told of the success of the Redskins in 1940 when they won the state championship and the methods employed by Patterson. He drew diagrams of plays used by Patterson men and described how they were executed.

With Leonard Warren, former Ashland athlete, as assistant coach, Patterson is looking forward to another successful year with Bob Smith, Marion Hardy, Bud LeRoy and Ed McGinty returning to form the nucleus of this year's team.

The annual Jackson county six-man football jamboree will be held on the Medford high school turf Friday night, Oct. 3.

NEW DAIRY WORKER IN THIS SECTION

George Lindahl, formerly of the Dairy Cooperative association plant in Portland, started work Sept. 25 as milk and cream grader for the state department of agriculture in Josephine and Jackson counties. His headquarters are at the county agent's office in Grants Pass.

Lindahl succeeds Joe Grey, who left late in August following his call to army service. Grey had been in this territory since early summer of 1939.

Besides his work at the dairy co-op plant, Lindahl was employed a year at the Dallas creamery and also studied dairy manufacturing at Oregon State college.

Electricity Lights The Way

—for night sports—makes possible the enjoyment of these games in the daylight brilliance of powerful lamps scientifically arranged. Electricity also lights the way in the home, which is of far greater importance, for here the daily health and comfort of the individual is affected. Correct lighting brings added enjoyment to reading and makes possible longer hours of study without the danger of eye strain. Don't be guilty of the false economy of poor lighting when approved lamps and bulbs of sufficient power can be had for so little.
