NEWS FROM

Lincoln School By SCHOOL PUPILS

Philip Selby brought his fingerprint set to school and fingerprinted all of the children in his room.

On Tuesday, March 31, the boys and girls of Room 5 saw colored slides of Holland. The slides showed many interesting things: the cities, fishing villages, canals, dog larts, windmills, farms, gardens, costumes of the people, and the chief occupations of Holland.

STUDENTS REMAINING IN COLLEGE, FIGURES SHOW

Indications that college students are taking seriously the nationwide advice to remain in school until or unless called to military duty are seen in the larger enrollment than was expected in the spring term at Oregon State college. Registration passed the 3600 mark before the end of the first full week, which is only 11 per cent less than last year and a smaller drop than predicted.

Women especially are staying by their studies, as the drop in the co-ed total is only four per cent. An analysis of the changes by classes shows that the freshman class is less than 50 students smaller than a year ago, and the senior class is slightly larger, the falling off being in sophomore and junior classes, from which men have been taken in considerable numbers by selective service and as volunteers in the air corps and similar services.
