THIS AND THAT

(By Old Timer)
To the Editor:
If the sun scorched grass that fringes Ashland's main thoroughfares could be converted into briquettes, the problem of keeping the home fires burning would be greatly helped.

It's passing strange that coal is being imported from Utah while coal deposits almost at our back door are undeveloped. Coal selling at $16 a ton merits the appellation of "black diamonds", and incidentally should be an incentive to development of local resources.

Elmer Davis, director of War Information, warns us that as a nation we are not yet "ankle deep in the war." Such being the case, Uncle Zeke wonders what's it going to be like when we are in it up to our waist?

The Japanese want to colonize the Pacific. Well, they're making a good beginning—they've begun rapidly to colonize the bottom of the Pacific—around the Solomons.

We're certain to lick the Japs eventually but, first, we must lick a whole lot of our war savings stamps.

Real estate in German industrial towns is going up fast. But not in price.

This appears to be an air war, with everything else stringing along behind it.

Hitler is making a costly bid for the oil of the Caucasus.

Cut those weeds now. Don't wait for Jack Frost.

So much preaching is only preaching.

There's no Canaan in politics.

IN DEFENSE WORK

HEADED EAST

On a dried grass pad with a wind of three miles per hour, 85.3 percent of all cigarettes tossed away ignited the grass. The average time for ignition was five minutes.

Oregon's green forests produce enough timber to build 40,944 homes per year or one home for each family in the state.

Fully 75 per cent of the revenue taken from timber sold on state forests is returned to the local county, according to Lynn F. Cronemiller, assistant state forester in charge of land use.

Craters Top O & C Baseball League

The Medford Craters, winners of the Oregon-California baseball league championship and holders of the President's cup by virtue of two straight wins over Klamath Falls, are making plans for several post-season games to be played at the Medford fairgrounds. The Craters are dickering with Eugene, state league champions, for a game at Medford and a semi-pro team from Portland also has shown interest in coming south for a clash with the Craters. The Chico Cubs are practically signed for two games at Medford and the Crater management plans to have about six more home games before the Craters hang up their suits.

John Bill Ricketts owned the first American circus and gave exhibitions in Philadelphia as early as 1792.

Greenland is the world's most sparsely inhabited area, with .04 persons a square mile. Do you remember when you used to chew licorice and make yourself believe you were chewing tobacco?

A smile is rest to the weary, daylight to the discouraged, sunshine to the sad, and Nature's best antidote for trouble.

Years ago, barbers, aside from hair cutting, commonly practiced surgery and dentistry of the day.
