The official presentation was made by Governor George Wilson of the state of Iowa.

VOTE 310 (X) YES SAVE OUR STEELHEAD TROUT

The Wildlife Federation is fighting for the conservation of the gamest of all game fish—the steelhead. In opposition to the exploitation by a few commercial interests who would entirely exterminate steelhead trout.

Oregon is the only state in the Union that still permits taking of game fish with nets.

The steelhead is Oregon's greatest advertising symbol.

May we request your careful study of this measure and your cooperation for conservation of one of Oregon's greatest heritages. You just can't be wrong to keep what we have. There's always an opportunity to exploit, but you can't bring back the fish after they're gone. Watch your ballot closely—VOTE 310 (X) YES.

INDECISION

Text: "A double-minded man is unstable in all his ways." James, 1:18.

Walk back memories' road with me to the old swimmin' hole of boyhood. It is the first day of the season, as far as swimming is concerned. There you stand, clothed in nature's garments, on the bank of the creek. Dark, cold waters push idly by. You shiver and prepare for the breath-taking plunge. "One, two, three," you count, holding your nose with one hand, the other hand pointed toward the forbidding waters. Then you back off to survey the situation again. Or you pretend a grass burr is stuck in your foot. But the pose will not last long. You are not a sissie. So, once again,—"One, two, three." But your courage explodes like a pricked balloon. Then, a piercing yell, a sudden shove by someone behind, and you are in.

All of which is to say that the double or divided mind never gets anywhere. It is always balancing precariously between two possible choices,—this hat or that one, this dress or the other, this thing to say or the other. The moments slip by, and eventually a life slips by. But the great decision is not made.

This is a day, pre-eminently, of great decisions to be made. Not only the master statesman, not only the general pondering the possible movements of the troops, but the common, ordinary man must make and abide by these great decisions of the heart and mind. For the final issue of the centuries is found as much in the attitudes of the last and least man as in the turn of a battle. To gain the whole world through conquest and to lose our own soul through indecision is to lose everything. To unthinkingly tolerate everything is to stand for nothing. It is to be perpetually in a state of suspended animation or, more properly, it is to exhibit the extreme of indecision. But, to be able to say, for example, "I know in whom I have believed and am persuaded that He is able to keep that which I have committed unto Him against that day" is to be freed from that double-mindedness that robs us of our powers, that thwarts our hope and leaves us a little farther from home today than we were yesterday. This is the supreme decision awaiting our verdict today,—this full commitment of ourselves to the calling of God. Once surrendered to Him, without reservation, the rest of our life is made simpler, stronger.

The thought has a final consideration. "No issue," someone has said "is ever settled until it is settled right." The last word about man is that he was created for God. Until man recognizes that fact and affirms it in his every breath he is as the waves of the sea, torn forever between the pull of the earth and the attraction of the moon. He is a double-minded man, a double-minded man is a tormented man, unstable in all his ways. There is, of course, a way out. Paul suggests it. "This one thing I do," he says. In that direction is stability and joy.

It takes 12,000 telephone calls to build a bomber!

And it takes a lot of calls to build ships, tanks, guns . . . to move millions of men and the supplies they need.

With vital telephone materials drafted for the duration, additional lines cannot be built at this time. But war calls must go through. So will you, please:

Ask yourself, every time you are about to make a long distance call, is this call necessary?

And when you do call, please be brief.

Your assistance, and your understanding of the magnitude and importance of our task in keeping the telephone lines clear for war calls, are deeply appreciated. Your help makes it possible for us to be of maximum service to our Nation.

WAR CALLS COME FIRST

THE PACIFIC TELEPHONE AND TELEGRAPH COMPANY

Here's another reason why we will keep 'em rolling!

6214

On July 31, 5,137 Southern Pacific men were serving in our country's armed forces; on August 31, 5,836 men; and on September 15, 6,214. That's a lot of men from one organization!

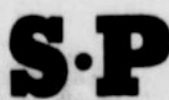

To these men, the ideal of service is nothing new. Railroadng has always inspired devotion to duty, and a conductor wears the stars on his sleeve just as proudly as a sailor wears his "hash marks."

We miss these men badly, for we worked side by side with them. We also miss their long training and experience in railroad work—training and experience that just can't be replaced overnight. But we're going to do our best to back these men up, wherever they may be.

We who are left have the job of getting troops, equipment and war materials over the line to the places where they're needed, when they're needed. And though the traffic peak in the next few months will be the greatest we have ever faced, we promise our men in the service that we will not let them down.

So if you see an extra glint of determination in an engineer's eye, or a passenger representative on the road night and day accompanying troop trains, or a section hand swinging his pick as if the ballast were full of Japs—you'll know why they have a personal interest in this war, and a personal determination to do their part to keep 'em rolling.

The War Bonds you buy now will help pay for one of those swell new post-war automobiles.

One $18.75 War Bond will buy four 37mm. shells.
