OPPORTUNITY—TOMORROW!

Opportunities for the youth today are many and their responsibilities are equally numerous. In the days of this war and in the days of the peace that will follow will come undertakings and duties that will call upon the highest intelligence and competence of the youth of this period. But what of the youth twenty years from now—those who are children and babies now? We can scarcely comprehend the obligations that they must claim and inherit. What fields of development—what course of construction will be theirs? What scientific work will be left undone—what innovations must they conceive?

The youth of tomorrow—what vast fields of endeavor for their hands and minds! Their's must be a given task—the task of reclaiming a civilization more worthy and just than ever before. Can they rebuild from the ruins of today; can they conceive an order of freedom from the strife today? Youth and their opportunities tomorrow! Will they be slaves in an oppressed world or will they by their own genius set a higher standard of freedom? They will do as they are taught today and they must build from our principles. Then, will their visualities capture only that which is great and fine today or will it be mingled with our agonies of conflict?

To the youth of tomorrow—you are masters of your own fate, and tomorrow is yours to hold, to do, to build as you may... we hope.

STABILIZATION!

Is it possible to stabilize farm prices without stabilizing wages? Is it possible to restrict the speed of increased living costs? "Stabilization"—how is it to be accomplished? Apparently we are against a "mountain" that does not have the least resemblance to a "mole hill". The problems of "price ceilings", wage controls, living costs, and production, seemingly is putting his administration to the supreme test and we wonder if Washington is fully equipped with material and means to handle the difficult situation to the satisfaction, fairness, and necessity of all things concerned.

For years the farmer was without organization and regardless of Congress, labor, or anything else, he simply had to take what was handed to him. Now there is grave danger of inflation, in fact, to a large extent it is well upon us now but the farmer is armed—he has the protection of "parity". But what happens—the farmer is asked to reverse farm price ceilings at 110 per cent parity while just recently labor received a wage increase because living costs had gone up! Now what about the farmer's costs of living? Of course a large percentage of his food stuffs are produced but there are the other essentials such as the canned goods, clothes, and equipment that do have to be purchased. Another thing—what about the price of store merchandise? It is evident some means of price stability should be in effect there. The farmer or anyone else may find several prices upon essentially the same quality merchandise. Price stabilization—where does its line of standard begin or even end!

Price controls over labor, manufacturing, marketing, transportation, and processing must conform to agriculture or they will be distinctly out of line. The farmer has established a level with the polished office desk and executives must recognize this fact. The situation of entire "stabilization" must be established but it must be done correctly and unselfishly.

DO YOU KNOW—

Do you know—we would like to be asked out to Camp White for our Thanksgiving dinner—with all that's on the menu for the Boys, we would be unable to get half of it from the stores, and to be right down frank about it, we can't even pay 60c a pound for a turkey. A good many of the boys will wish they would of stayed at Camp and got a real feed.

Some Holly Parcels Need State Tags

Oregon residents shipping holly to California friends and relatives this holiday season must obtain to accompany the package a certificate of inspection from the closest county horticultural inspector or state department of agriculture nursery representative, warns the state department of agriculture plant division.

This procedure is necessary because California has recently revised its citrus white fly quarantine and has added holly as a host plant. Other plants shipped into that state and subject to the same regulations are gardenia, privet, common lilac, camellia, jasmine and persimmon.

Under the quarantine, ingoing shipments of holly must bear certification that the holly stocks were either field grown for at least a year prior to shipment or not stored or grown in a greenhouse or other heated structure where host plants from areas infested with citrus white fly also have been stored or grown.

Certification of holly shipments will be largely a matter of routine, as all holly grown in Oregon is grown outdoors.

Cattle Grubs Now Real Hindrance to War Work

The cattle grub, heel fly, or "warble", as it is variously called, is now considered not only a serious pest of all cattle but is a war saboteur as well, as it reduces milk flow from dairy cows and seriously damages hides that are needed for leather.

These cattle grubs are common in Oregon as in other states, says

Record War Bond Sales Is Goal Of Women At War Week Nov. 22

WASHINGTON, D. C.—America's women in the cities and on the farms—in war factories and in their homes—are determined to make Women At War Week the greatest War Bond selling effort since Pearl Harbor.

Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt sounded the keynote for the Treasury Department's Women At War Week, Nov. 22 to 28, with an appeal to women to save on "little things" to provide money for War Bonds.

"We women want to work hard, we want to be a part of this strenuous period because unless we are, we will not be able to face the men when they return and claim our share of the future responsibility for building a peaceful world," the First Lady declared.

The overall direction of Women At War Week rests with the Women's Section of the War Savings Staff under the leadership of Miss Harriet Elliott, Associate Field Director, and Mrs. Henry Morgenthau, Jr., Chief of the Special Activities Unit.

From coast to coast women in every community have made plans for torchlight parades, fashion shows, teas, rallies, store window displays, Stamp and Bond booths, pageants, civic sings, balls and mardi gras. In each locality administration of the one week drive rests with the local War Savings Committee which has worked out activities adapted to their areas.

Mrs. Morgenthau, in a special message for Women At War Week, declared that the spirit of America's pioneer women lives today more strongly than ever.

"The average American woman began to rise to new heights on Sunday, Dec. 7, 1941," Mrs. Morgenthau said. "This winter the average American woman will be spending less in order to save more to invest in War Bonds and Stamps. She will not, please God, ever have to fire a gun or fly a bomber. But she will, please God, always do everything she can to help buy anything—and the best of everything—that fires or flies or floats in this terrible war."

During Women At War Week volunteer War Bond saleswomen will wear an armband similar to the one being attached to the sleeve of Mrs. Henry Morgenthau, Jr., by Miss Harriet Elliott.

He Who Laughs—Lasts!

MOM WON'T LET ME KEEP THIS ZOOT SUIT—I DON'T EVEN LOOK LIKE A CIVILIAN, SHE SAYS.

Dr. J. N. Shaw, O.S.C. veterinarian, but special work on this pest has not been carried on here because of more pressing disease and animal pest problems, he said. USDA research has, however, developed several controls for the cattle grub.

The one to use depends on the size and kind of herd. Dotonone powder when mixed with wettable sulphur and water is effective when applied as a spray to the backs of animals in an ordinary cattle chute. Smaller herds may be treated by rubbing iodoform ointment into each grub hole. Where only a few animals are infested, grubs may be squeezed out with fingers or forceps.

Less Than Fifth of All Sawmill Waste Destroyed

OREGON STATE COLLEGE—Sawmills of Oregon are now destroying only 18.6 per cent of the "waste" wood produced in connection with lumber manufacturing, according to preliminary returns on a survey conducted by E. G. Locke, assistant professor of chemical engineering, who is working with the Bonneville Power administration on this project.

Returns from about a third of the mills, representing some 70 per cent of the state lumber production, show 27.8 per cent of the waste wood is sold as wood, 53.6 per cent is used by the mills and 18.6 per cent is destroyed. Most destruction occurs in southwestern Oregon where nearby markets cannot absorb the output.

The study was undertaken both to locate fuel for prospective industrial plants and to uncover domestic supplies if possible. Progress has been made on both. Plants not yet replying to questionnaires are being contacted again.

"The habit of criticism grows upon us because criticism is the easiest thing in the world. It does not take a thimbleful of brains to find fault, and the biggest aumskull in the world can find fault with the greatest man in the world. We flatter ourselves that criticism is a sign of superior intelligence. It is not. It is usually a sign of bad manners, of lack of self restraint, and of an entire ignorance of psychology."
