OSC ENTERTAINERS PLEASE SOLDIERS

A group of Oregon State men and women who spent their vacation entertaining at soldier centers in Oregon, Washington and British Columbia made such a hit that they were held an extra day in Canadian camps at the urgent request of military officials. The "troupe" traveled in a college bus accompanied by two faculty members.

ASSOCIATED MEN STUDENTS HOLD DINNER MEET

The Associated Men Students of the Southern Oregon College met at the home of Dr. Stephen Epler Tuesday evening for a dinner. Harry Stallard, former president of the group, has been called to serve in the Army, and the new president, Don Windbigler, directed the meeting, assisted by Bud Silver and Dick Eerninghausen.

The dinner was a jolly affair despite two unpleasant conditions approaching near. First, the boys surmised it might be the last dinner gathering for the duration, on account of food rationing. Second, Dr. Epler, their host, is soon to leave SOCE to take up new duties in the United States Navy.

Some 25 men students and faculty members were present at the dinner.

David Williams of Phoenix, former SOCE student, visited the Southern Oregon College Friday, on the eve of departure for San Francisco, from where he will go to Shepherd Field.

Another former student, Douglas Eden of Medford, has also been called recently. Both boys were in the Army Reserve, and the current year were waiting call to service while students in the University of Oregon. At SOCE they were students of the junior college department.

SPECIAL COURSE FOR JOURNALISM STUDENTS

Oregon high school graduates and other qualified persons, particularly women, will have an opportunity to complete four years of journalistic training and be at work on state newspapers within three years under an emergency speed-up program to be initiated by the school of journalism here. A special two-year course also will be available to persons interested in journalism who have an acceptable education background.

The program, announced by Eric W. Allen, dean of the school of journalism, is an effort to meet the acute shortage of available newspaper personnel in the state. Demands for qualified reporters, editors, photographers have exceeded the supply for the past two years, he said.

"Newspapers are essential to the war program and we are stepping up the training to help meet the acute shortage of qualified journalists available to Oregon newspapers and associations. This should be a worthwhile opportunity for every high school graduate, particularly women, who have ever considered journalism as a career," Dean Allen said.

The shortened program will take advantage of summer sessions and more intensive class work.
