BRITISH-INDIA PROBLEM

It will probably be denied, but the inside fact is that U. S. Ambassador Bill Phillips came back from India with a blunt, in spots bitter, report against the British.

He felt that the United States should do something about the festering Indian political situation, that the Indian army and people could not be a force in the war until the question was cleaned up. Also he was straight-from-the-shoulder in his criticism of Field Marshal Wavell whom he feels is not suited for the job and should be removed.

Phillips not only gave this report to the President but he also had a conference with Winston Churchill.

Ambassador Phillips' report is most significant, because he has been pro-British, served as minister to Canada, has been a consistent believer that our policy must go hand-in-hand with the British. Phillips is mild, not addicted to crusading, but a thorough, conscientious diplomat, reporting what he believes to be the facts.

Among other things, Phillips reported that mediation between different Indian factions and the British government was possible now; also desirable. He feels that if some such move is not undertaken now, he should not go back to India, nor should any other U. S. ambassador, since the presence of an American envoy would be taken as the stamp of U. S. approval for British policy.

What the President said to Churchill on the Indian problem is his secret. But it is known that Roosevelt has hoped for a year that the British would do something about India. However, he also feels very strongly that the United States should not interfere in Britain's colonial problems.

Meanwhile, the British, with an army large enough to handle any problem inside India, seem content merely to sit on the lid—despite American pleas that the Burma road must be reopened and despite the fact that Indian troops will not fight the Japs wholeheartedly unless they have a small investment in the Four Freedoms for which they are supposed to fight.

WOMAN WATCHES ARMY COOKS

Miss Mary I. Barber, Washington's first dollar-a-year woman, has now begun to bring long-needed thrift to army mess kitchens. If Miss Barber has her way, the army's 250,000 cooks will be persuaded to make soup out of the left-overs and cut down the quota for the garbage pails.

In fact, her save-left-overs idea has already gone so far that certain pig farmers near army camps are complaining that they don't get enough garbage these days.

Miss Barber was borrowed by the quartermaster corps from the Kellogg company at Battle Creek to teach tough mess sergeants, among other things, that a camp menu does not have to be arranged one week in advance, and stuck to religiously. If, for instance, a camp mess has several hundred chickens left over from Sunday dinner, they can be used on Monday, not thrown into the garbage pail.

Unfortunately, a lot of mess sergeants had been doing that, partly because the menu for Monday was already arranged. Also it is against the law for the army to sell food, nor can it be given away. It must be thrown away. This has been done in the past via garbage trucks to the highest bidding hog dealers.

Now, however, Miss Barber is helping to arrange master menus, which though they specify soup, do not name the variety. This gives the cook an option to make soup out of whatever his left-overs permit.

This all sounds simple to the average housewife, but believe it or not, it has not always been done by the army.

Another trick is to save all dripping fats from bacon or sausage, and use them in a cream sauce for cauliflower, or other vegetables.

WHITE HOUSE BLACK MARKET

The White House is having its troubles with the Black Market. The White House architect called up the Georgetown Electric company recently to buy No. 12 copper wire for rewiring a part of the Executive Mansion. But there was no copper wire to be had.

"Where can we get it?" the architect asked.

"Baltimore, on the Black Market—only it will cost you 20 cents a foot instead of seven cents."

"Well, we can't have anything to do with the Black Market," was the White House reply, and the architect went shopping elsewhere."

INDIAN MERRY-GO-ROUND

¶ Imprisoned Mahatma Gandhi has asked the viceroy for permission to communicate with the Mohammedan leader in an effort to effect Indian unity, but the viceroy has refused.

¶ Raj Gopal Chariar, important Indian leader, has asked the viceroy for permission to see Gandhi in order to compose Indian differences. Again the viceroy has refused . . . Suspicion is that the British don't want Indian differences adjusted or composed.

In the Navy a floor is a "deck," doors are "bulkheads," downstairs is "below," and a cigarette is a "Camel." At least, Camel is the favorite cigarette among Navy men, as it is among men in the Army, Marines, and Coast Guard. (Based on actual sales records from service men's stores.) And a carton of Camels is a favorite gift. Though there are now Post Office restrictions on packages to overseas Army men, you can still send Camels to soldiers in the U.
