What Makes an American Army

by Ruth Taylor

What makes an American Army American?
It is selection. The boys come from all ranks of life, from farm and factory, from village and city, from the work bench and the class room. There is no question of class, no bar of national origin of the names they bear, no dispute as to their religion. They are chosen because they are physically fit and mentally able to do a hard job - because they are tough enough to take it - and to hand it out.

It is leadership. With only a small standing army war found us with too few men trained to lead but that never stopped an American army. The boys in the ranks were culled by their officers and if they showed any qualities of leadership, they were pushed into officers training camps there to earn their ratings. Gossip mongers to the contrary, practically none of our officers were selected because of their "friends". Most have come up from the ranks through sheer ability and hard work. Our leaders know the men they are leading because in the ranks are men they know, who come from the same kind of homes, were taught in the same kind of schools the beliefs in democracy. The men obey because they know "why". The officers lead because they know "how".

It is devotion. In our ranks are men whose ancestors crossed the seas generations ago - and those who came in the last immigration; those whose only language seems to be American slang, those who talk with a "Harvard" accent, and those who are Americans by choice. There is a common bond which ties them together - a bond of devotion to a flag which stands for a devotion to the free land that is America.

It is consecration. Alike the men who are American are consecrated to an ideal set forth in the Declaration of Independence. "We hold these truths to be self evident, that all men are created equal; in the Farewell Address of George Washington, "Citizens by birth or choice... the independence and liberty you possess are the work of joint councils, and joint efforts - of common dangers, sufferings and successes;" in the Gettysburg address of Lincoln, "Government of the people, by the people and for the people" and finally in the message of President Roosevelt. "In the future days, which we seek to make secure, we look forward to a world founded upon four essential freedoms."

Selection, leadership, devotion and consecration - that is what makes an American Army American. That is what will carry an American Army on to victory!

Remember... that War Bond you buy may be the very thing that will break the back of the Axis!

Murder IN THE KITCHEN

CRIME DOESN'T PAY. Not even in the kitchen. Are you guilty of things like this?

With a Smile She Killed 10,000 Vitamins

A teaspoonful of baking soda added to a pot of fresh green peas is MURDER IN THE FIRST DEGREE.
Vitamins and vegetables are vital, living things and soda is positively lethal. DON'T murder 10,000 vitamins at one fell swoop by cooking vegetables with soda.
"If you would treat your family well," advise home economists at Revere's Experimental Kitchen, "DON'T treat your vitamins rough."
And if you are fortunate enough to own some copper clad stainless steel ware, use it to cook vegetables with little water, a low flame, a covered utensil and NO BAKING SODA, you'll give vitamins a chance

CHURCHES PLAN FOR WORLD ORDER DAY

Religious education leaders in thousands of Protestant churches across America will play an important part in preparing Christian people for more intelligent and effective participation in influencing the post-war world order during the Christian Missions on World Order in November and particularly on World Order Sunday, November 7.

This prediction has been made by Dr. Herman J. Sweet of the International Council of Religious Education, one of six interdenominational agencies sponsoring the program which will direct attention to the need for education for a just and enduring peace in the church, the church school, the community and the home.

"We are convinced," Dr. Sweet stated in announcing the International Council's part in the effort, "that an intelligent and wholly Christian stand by the church people of America with regard to the issues at stake in the peace will have a profound effect upon the cause of Christ around the world for generations to come."

TO ROUSE FLOW OF LIVER BILE

Get a bottle of Kruschen Salts tonight. Half an hour before breakfast, take as much as will lie on a dime in a glass of water (hot or cold) or in your morning cup of tea or coffee and keep this up for 30 days. Kruschen taken this way helps relieve such symptoms as sick headaches, bowel sluggishness and so-called bilious indigestion when due to insufficient flow of bile from the gall-bladder. You can get Kruschen, a famous English formula made in the U. S. A., at any drug store. You must be satisfied or money back.

STATE FORESTER PRAISES PUBLIC

Once again we have reached the semi-finals of another fire prevention campaign, and the time is approaching to ring down the curtains for 1943. And once again the people of Oregon have responded to the call to "prevent man-caused fires" in the traditional Oregon manner. It is, however, still too early to give up a cheer—the finals have just started. It was on September 26, 1936, when the Bandon fire took its tragic toll in life and property. With the lush grass and vegetation getting drier with each ray of sun and gust of wind, the fire situation might yet become critical. Our vigilance must continue until general rains have fallen.

For the fourth consecutive year, fires have been kept down to a minimum, both in numbers and in area burned. This fine record has been made possible by the united efforts of state, private and federal forest protective agencies; by the precautionary measures taken by forest operators who are spending more than one million dollars annually to keep fire out of the woods; by the hundreds of volunteer farm fire crews; and last, but by no means least, by Mr. and Mrs. John Q. Public. But the most effective single co-ordinating influence of this entire effort has come from the Keep Oregon Green organization. I take this opportunity to express appreciation to everyone who contributed to that program, and especially to the county committees. Their services were invaluable.

SEWING MACH. CARE GIVEN IN BULLETIN

Shortage of repair men just at a time when homemakers need to have their sewing machines in good running order constantly has led to the publication of a four-page circular on the care and adjustment of sewing machines, just issued by the O.S.C. Extension service.

This circular, written by Lucy E. Lane, extension specialist in clothing and textiles, is intended to supplement the information contained in sewing machine instruction books supplied by the manufacturer. It contains a picture of a typical sewing machine head with all parts clearly marked to be used as a guide in following the directions for cleaning, oiling, and adjusting sewing machines.

This pamphlet issued as extension bulletin No. 624, is particularly valuable in case the original instruction book has been lost. Copies may be obtained free from any county extension agent or direct from the college.

Pedestrian Accidents On Increase

Jaywalking, the practice of crossing streets between intersections, is on the increase in Oregon, a survey made by the safety division of the secretary of state office disclosed.

This unsafe practice was reported in 166 percent more pedestrian fatalities during the first six months of 1943 than for the same period of 1942. Eight persons were killed while crossing streets between intersections during that period this year, compared to only three for the comparative period a year ago.

Pedestrian fatalities have increased a little over 40 percent so far this year, while other types of traffic fatalities are showing a downward trend, the safety division's survey showed.

Indicative of the fact that increased numbers of pedestrians alone is not responsible for the increase in deaths, the division reported that unsafe walking practices were factors in 80 percent more pedestrian accidents this year than a year ago. Of the walkers killed in traffic so far this year, 64 percent were engaged in unsafe actions at the time they were struck while last year, only 35 percent were so engaged.

Unsafe practices, in addition to jaywalking, were crossing streets against red lights, stepping into the street from between parked cars, walking along the right-hand side of the road instead of on the left, facing approaching traffic, and failing to carry white or display a lighted flashlight while walking at night.

STARCH STICKS?

When starch sticks to the bottom of an iron, Mrs. Julia Kiene, director of Westinghouse Home Economics Institute, does either one of these two things: Adds an extra pinch of salt to the starch, or sprinkles some silt on a newspaper and runs the iron over it.

The first farmer's course in the west was held at Corvallis in January, 1894, according to the thumbnail history of Oregon State college compiled in connection with the 75th anniversary celebration.

LOOK Lady

with JOSEPHINE HUDDLESTON
Only women who worried along with old-fashioned cooking recipes have known the awful uncertainty and frequent failure which were daily occurrences before science, in the form of tested recipes for cooking, came to grace our culinary efforts with success every time.

Just the right blend of ingredients and temperatures is as important to successful washing as it is to successful cake baking.

In principle, the washing and ironing methods followed by professional laundries today are very much like tested recipes for cooking. For, the whole washing and ironing procedure followed in modern laundries is first tested by the American Institute of Laundering at Joliet, Illinois. These experts work with controlled temperatures, length of time required for washing articles clean and safely, and the separation of all articles according to their color and fiber content just as carefully as a homemaker sifts flour, separates whites from yolks of eggs and sets her oven at 350° F. when the recipe so states!

Then, too, professional laundries use rain-soft water just as religiously as a homemaker uses heavy cream for whipping. Even the right type of washer or ironer is as vitally important to the tested recipes for washing used by laundries as the right type of pan is for cake making at home!

All these are reasons why washing done at the professional laundry eliminates the "washing failures" experienced by so many homemakers who haven't the advantage of these tested recipes for washing.

Besides controlling the temperature of rain-soft water, using the right supplies for each type of fabric and separating cottons, linens, wools, silks and rayons from each other, professional laundries also separate colors very carefully.

For instance, white cotton and linen articles are separated into three groups! Colored articles are separated into five general groups: 1. light pinks, lavenders, tans; 2. light blues, greens and grays; 3. yellows; 4. dark brown, blue, purple, green and black; 5. dark red and orange. Then, these are washed and ironed by the tested recipe for wool, cotton, linen, silk or rayon, according to their fiber content.

SEVEN SCHOLARSHIPS IN PHARMACY READY AT OSC

Seven freshman scholarships amounting to $66 each are available for students desiring to enter the school of pharmacy at Oregon State College this fall. Funds for the scholarships were contributed by the Oregon State Pharmaceutical Association and by individual druggists. The scholarships cover the cost of fees and tuition for one academic year.

Those interested in applying for these may communicate directly with Dean A. Ziefle of the school of pharmacy at Corvallis. They are open to both young men and women on the basis of scholastic attainment and other factors.
