The O. D. O. Club met at the home of Mrs. Glen Winthrow on Friday afternoon. Most of the members were present, and Mrs. Hazel Ferns of Ashland was a guest.

ABILITY TO SEE WELL MAY VARY, TESTS INDICATE

Sight of some persons goes up and down from day to day, tests made on several hundred school children indicate, reports the Better Vision Institute. One group of children were examined by a skilled eyesight specialist. Twelve of the youngsters were found to have visual activity of 20-30, four with 20-40, and eight with less than 20-40. On a second examination within a few days by the same examiner, 13 of the children registered visual acuity of 20-30, two with 20-30, and nine with 20-40.

Commenting on these and other similar tests, the Institute concludes that the sight of certain persons, as measured in visual acuity, may fluctuate on their "off days."

Hints for the Homemaker

Washing Wartime Woolens

"WEAR IT OUT, make it last," is definitely our motto nowadays. Among those things which it pays to conserve are woolens of every type. With a fuel shortage in sight, we all will have to cherish our wool blouses, sweaters and blankets this winter more carefully than the family jewels. I find that careful home washing does more than anything else to make such woolens last longer. Like so many women, you are probably planning for home washing of your own woolies this winter, so I'm passing on a few washing hints which I have found helpful.

Lukewarm water, gentle handling, and a pure, mild soap are my list of essentials for washing woolens. They keep the dyes from running and fading and the wool from matting and shrinking.

You see, wool fibers swell up when wet and tend to tangle together. If you rub any woolen article or leave it in the washing machine too long, the fibers become permanently matted and shrink together while drying. Once they shrink or "felt" in this way, they cannot be restretched to their original size and shape. Therefore, even heavy woolens that can be safely washed in a machine, such as blankets, robes, heavy sweaters and snow suits, must be handled just as carefully as hand knit garments.

In washing woolens in the machine be sure to use only a mild soap, such as the one that gives soft suds, and which comes in cake, flake or granulated form. Use plenty of lukewarm water and let the machine run for just three to five minutes—not a second longer! Follow with three minutes or less of agitation during rinsing. If you use a roller type wringer, be sure to loosen the wringer. Then hang your woolens up at once, shaping and straightening them occasionally as they dry.

When it comes to more delicate woolens, such as hand-knit sweaters, I find that only hand washing gives the desired results. Squeeze the woolens gently through lukewarm suds of the same pure mild soap, and rinse them gently in lukewarm water. Then roll them in a Turkish towel to remove as much moisture as possible, especially if they have contrasting trimmings, after that unroll the garments at once and shape them before drying.

Sweaters can be dried on forms if you have any. If not, make outlines of the garment on paper or a towel before you wash and place the washed sweater within the outline while drying. Ease the sweater back (or stretch it out) to original outline that you made before washing. Separate contrasting colors with a dry towel. Dry in shade away from all heat. This method is helpful in the case of all knitted woolens which tend to shrink not only because of carelessness in washing, but because of their construction. I have found that if such garments are washed as described above and then dried carefully in this manner they will usually stretch back to their original size.

Mrs. Nellie Donnelly and Mrs. Louise Perozzi left last week for San Francisco where they plan to spend the winter.

Wm. B. Blackmer, Jr. of the Marine Corps is visiting in Ashland this week with his parents.

RELATIVES SURPRISE MRS. C. A. HEATH THANKSGIVING

Mr. and Mrs. Bob Heath and two daughters of Dunsmuir, California pleasantly surprised Mrs. Heath on Thanksgiving Day when they arrived with a bountiful Thanksgiving dinner already prepared. They were accompanied by Mr. Heath's father, Fritz Struss and his two sisters of Denver, Colorado. It was a happy day for all concerned, for Mr. Heath had but recently located his father and sisters whom he could not remember. After his mother's death at his birth, he was placed in a home, and his relatives lost track of him. The Heaths adopted him when he was 2½ years old.

Mrs. Phil Stansbury from Texas is arriving this week to spend the holidays with her parents, Chief of Police C. P. Talent and Mrs. Talent.

'Talking Library' Is Available to Schools

A "talking library" of science, which covers subjects ranging from little known facts about your refrigerator and electric iron to the latest discoveries in the world of electronics, has been made available for loan to high school classes throughout the nation.

The library is made up of recordings of 30 programs selected from "Adventures in Research," a weekly radio feature produced by the Westinghouse Research Laboratories and designed to bring the world of science to both the high school student and the man on the street. Typical programs include "Why Smash Atoms," "Today's Ben Franklin," "Virus—Enemy of Life" and "Science as a Career."

"Requests by teachers for transcriptions of the programs were so numerous," declared Charles W. MacLean, manager of Westinghouse School Service, Pittsburgh, Pa., "that we decided to work through a central lending source. We are now supplying transcriptions free of charge to the Federal Radio Education Committee of the U. S. Office of Education.

"High schools throughout the nation may borrow recordings of the program through the committee's headquarters in Washington, D. C. In the meantime, the F. R. E. C. is planning to set up 25 loan centers in various parts of the country to supply the needs of schools in those areas."

INTERMEDIATE YOUTH FELLOWSHIP ORGANIZED

Nine young people met at the Methodist Church at 5 o'clock last Sunday evening to organize an intermediate youth fellowship group.

Officers elected were as follows:

President, Barbara Messenger; First Commissioner, Carroll Powell; Second Commissioner, Connie Powell; Third Commissioner, Eldon Durham; Fourth Commissioner, Bill Bissell; secretary and treasurer, Mary Wilcox; and pianist, Marjorie Messenger. Miss Lois Ann Thompson is adviser of the group. Installation of officers will take place next Sunday evening at the church worship hour.

There was much enthusiasm expressed as the group made plans for a Christmas party and other activities.

Gilbert R. Hays, who is stationed at the airfield Marfa, Texas, enjoyed a week's furlough with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Hays and sister, Elwoodina Hays.

Mr. Larkin Grubb attended the funeral of his brother, Harry Grubb of Newport which was held at the Masonic Temple in Woodburn. Interment was in Hubbard.
