Home Cooking

By RUTH TAYLOR

What America needs is old fashioned home cooking. You know the kind I mean. Those big hearty country dishes that simmered in an iron pot on a big stove for hours, and that came to the table in a steaming aroma that made your mouth water. Cooked slowly, you could distinguish the taste of every ingredient so blended together that it made a delicious whole.

Pressure cooking may be modern - but as a people we resent it. We want to know what is cooking. We want to see what is in the pot. We want to know what we are eating. We don't want our vegetables and meat so mixed we can't tell which is which.

We are a beef stew country. And we want our stew made just right. Not one of those quick conglomerations hastily thrown together - but a carefully blended dish with due respect shown to the beef and onions, the carrots and the potatoes. Any good cook knows the longer you simmer it together, the better it is. In fact the old school holds it should never be eaten until the second day!

Another analogy. We are mixed pickles - all ingredients needed and none better than any other. Each at its best and each adding to the flavor.

You know, after all we have a right to be pretty proud of our melting pot. Our nation grew from transplanted stock - and like a fruit tree, the transplanting and grafting have worked to give better fruit.

This admixture of other bloods, this heterogeneity has been our strength in the past. It will be our strength and safeguard in the future. Not for us the deadly monotony of uniformity. The spice that adds zest and savor to the dish comes from the mixing of the ingredients.

This does not imply that any one ingredient in our national life must be more predominant over any other. This does not mean that each ingredient must be separate and apart - cooked in compartments where the aroma cannot blend. It does mean that the cooking of the national "stew" must be a drawing from all ingredients of their finest, a utilization of them so as to draw out their goodness and to combine it so as to blend the flavor of each separate ingredient into a harmonious whole.

We don't want formulas or short cuts. We want home cooking not pressure cooking - and we are not afraid to set up our national dish against that of any other nation!

Unsafe Parking Maneuvers Cause of Most Collisions

A survey of traffic accidents in Oregon cities during the first six months of 1944 showed most urban collisions involve unsafe parking maneuvers and failure to yield right of way at intersections, Secretary of State Bob Farrell announced today. The survey made by the safety division of the state department.

In cities where angle parking prevails, a large proportion of the traffic accidents reported during the first half of the year involved vehicles backing away from the curb. Some of the vehicles backed into passing cars, or sideswiped other parked cars. Several were struck by passing cars when the drivers failed to notice the car backing away from the curb.

In cities where parallel parking prevails, many accidents involve cars pulling out of the parking space while there were some involving cars that stopped to back into a parking space and were struck by the following car.

Approximately three-fourths of the intersection collisions reported in Oregon cities involve failure to yield right of way, the survey showed. Rear-end collisions, occurring when the car ahead stops suddenly, and head-on collisions resulting from turning movements for a small percentage of the intersection accidents.

"The survey shows clearly the need for greater care on the part of drivers leaving parked positions and for closer observance of the Oregon right of way law," Farrell said. "Prevention of accidents as cars leave parking positions rests on the driver of the Ability and Responsibility

WHEN a particularly tough and important job comes along, it usually lands in the lap of someone who is already doing a lot of other jobs well.

People like this—who are used to getting results—aren't too plentiful. They need to have both ability and a sense of responsibility. One alone won't do—for ability can sometimes be misdirected, and a sense of responsibility without ability can lead to troublesome meddling.

It's men with this combination of talents who have been carrying a heavy load on the home front these past few years. On the farm and in industry they've been meeting—and solving—the difficult wartime problems of production.

After the war is won, somebody must shoulder the equally big job of getting this nation back into peacetime production, of laying the groundwork for the better and more prosperous America we all want. This is a challenge, and an opportunity, for the producers of America—for the men and women who have a sense of responsibility and have shown their ability to get things done. because those Long Distance calls mean so much

A soldier has to line up for a lot of things but we don't like to see him wait too long for a Long Distance call.

Would you mind helping a little by saving the wires from seven to ten for the service men?

That's when thousands of soldiers rush to the telephones at the camps and we'd like to give them first call on Long Distance.
