LOCAL HAPPENINGS

Mr. and Mrs. Homer Culbertson and two children Susan and Danny, Mrs. Culbertson's aunt and two children of Klamath Falls, left last Wednesday to make their home at San Bernadino, Calif. They drove through by car with their personal effects on a trailer. Mr. Culbertson has been the mail carrier in the east end of town for several years and was transferred to the California city to take up the same work there.

Mr. and Mrs. F. K. McCutcheon arrived in Ashland Tuesday, coming from Chico, California. They plan to live in Ashland, as this seems to be a beneficial climate for Mrs. McCutcheon's asthma trouble. Mr. McCutcheon is a contract painter and sign painter by trade and is looking around for a place to go into business.

Mrs. J. Marinis of Montague, California, entered the Community Hospital Tuesday for surgery. Born to Mrs. Cloye Nidiver of Ashland, on August 17, a boy, at Community hospital.

A fried chicken dinner was served in the beautiful garden at the W. D. Jackson home on Iowa street Thursday, honoring Mrs. Clara Scott on the occasion of her birthday. Present were the members of a group which observes the birthday dates of each member. Gifts were presented to Mrs. Scott and following the supper, the guests spent the evening in visiting.

Mesdames Russell and Meade of the Social Circle of the Church of Christ were hostesses to the Circle in the Lithia Park Thursday. The meeting opened with a 12 o'clock luncheon. Husbands had been invited and several were present. At 2 o'clock the work meeting got under way, the main feature being the work project of making articles for the Happy Lads Home near Eugene.

Gifts Much Appreciated at USO Club

Mrs. Carmel Barnhouse, senior hostess on Saturday nights, brought several jars grape juice to make punch for the regular Saturday night dance and on Sunday Mr. J. D. Woodworth brought a generous amount of fresh peaches to the club. These were put on plates around the building and soon the plates would have to be refilled as he boys thought they were wonderful. Some of them apologized for eating so many but said they were so good they couldn't resist. They were told that was what they were brought for and it seemed to please all of them to think some one on the outside is looking out for their welfare.

SODA MOUNTAIN MAN FOUND DEAD

Paul Jones McQuat, for the past five years a resident in a small cabin on top of Soda Mountain, was found dead Wednesday evening, August 16 by Elmer Hopkins and Ward Hurlburt of Route 1, when they went to the cabin. They had taken the mail to him Monday evening, taking him a couple of letters. When he was found, he was sitting in his chair, and had apparently died of a sudden heart attack while reading the letters. One was unopened and the other was near the chair where he had dropped it. He had been a gold miner and did a little prospecting in the Soda Mountain district. He also had some talent in drawing and painting and spent much of his time at that. He had had heart trouble for several years.

Private services were held in the Litwiler Funeral Chapel Wednesday morning.

He was born October 29, 1876 at Cincinnati, Ohio and was 76 of age at the time of his death. Private services were held Wednesday morning, August 23 at Lit-chapel, with Father G. R. Turney of the St. Marks Episcopal church at Medford officiating. Interment was made in Siskiyou Memorial cemetery at Medford.

Survivors include P. G. McQuat, Meadow Valley, California, a son; daughters, Mrs. W. H. Lydard of Medford and Mrs. C. A. Orr of Portland, and two sons in the armed services, Sgt. A. W. McQuat at Camp Beauregard, Louisiana and Lt. Paul C. McQuat of Bainbridge, Georgia, and three brothers in the eas. Services were delayed so that the two sons in the services could attend the funeral of their father.
