Coffee Stays Off The Ration List

Coffee definitely is not going Director Byrnes said the Brazilian government has assured the state department that shipments of coffee will be resumed immediately.

The need for renewed coifee rationing was first seen when Brazilian exporters started with holding coffee shipments from the United States market in the hope of winning a price increase. But the OPA refused to raise the ceiling price. The Brazilian government now promises that one-million bags of coffee will be sent to the United States for civilian consumption every mon-

Paper Bundles

The Jackson county salvage committee is using a oneman hay baling rig to bundle up the resi-due of its recent waste paper salvage drive that netted 75,000 pounds. The residue, consisting of unwrapped periodicals, pasteboard, and general odds and ends is estimated at 50,000 pounds. The baler does them up in haybale size bundles, tied with baling wire. They will later be ship-ped to a salvage center.

S.P. Names New Police Chief Recently

The largest private police force in Western America acquired a new head on October 1 when Andrew J. McKenna took office as chief special agent for the Southern Pacific. He was appoint ed by J. W. Corbett, general manager of the railroad, to succeed the veteran Daniel OConnell who retired September 30 after 43 years service.

Chief O'Connell had one of the Those receiving them most colorful police careers in the West. He helped make the profession of train robbery so nazardous for the criminal that no Southern Pacific train has robbed since 1933. In protecting the safety of distinguished travelers he had ridden trains with every president of the United States since Theodore Roosevelt, as well as with several kings and McKenna started with Southern Pacific in 1908. He joined the railroad's police-force in 1915 and since 1942 had been assistant chief special agent.
