

Washington School

Room 1.
Sharon Mitchell, Sharon Brown son, Carol Beare and Dorothy Gay have been absent for several days with illness.
Most everyone in our room brought some tin, but we did not do as well as we did in the paper drive.
Our room is 100% in the Red Cross Drive. We hope our room can give $10.00.
Nora Jean Clifton brought her pet guinea-pig to school. He was all brown and had big bright eyes and was very tame.
Room 2

Not long ago Room 2 was the scene of a surprise birthday party for Barbara Hendrickson. Her mother planned it and Mrs. Wil-lits was in the secret too. The children in the room made and decorated paper napkins, and made birthday cards for Barbara, too. Just a half hour before school closed Barbara's mother came bringing cookies and ice cream. Barbara was greatly surprised, and all had a very happy time.
Since the Hendrickson family was moving away the following week to live near Medford, this was a farewell party too. All in the room were sorry to have Barbara leave, and all wish her happy times in her new school.
Bill Feeler has gone from Room II also. He has transferred to Lincoln school. Ralph Crawford has moved to Eastern Oregon near Bend.
Two new pupils have come to Room II, First Grade. They are Cynthia Sue Gray who transferred from Lincoln School and Claudia Joe Johnson who has just come here from Portland.
Room II collected more tin than any other room in the Washington school. They are proud of this record for they brought in 588 lbs. Lenora Kiker had high score with 330 lbs.

ROOM III
The pupils of room III are happy to see Wilma Weich and Mary Lou Geringer back in school. They have had the chicken pox. One day Billy Fimmel suggested that room III make up a tune to go with a poem which was written on the board. The boys and girls helped Miss Mitcheu write the song. They voted to call it "The Kite Song." It is very pretty.
Room III has Dutch pictures around the room. The pretty bouquets of daffodils add more color to the room. Marlene Elliott says she will bring the first tulip to school.
ROOM IV
Paul Smith and Katherin Feeler have moved to the Lincoln school district. The boys and girls miss Paul and Katheryn very much.
Donnie French is a new pupil in Room IV. The boys and girls are very happy to have Donnie and hope he will like our school.
Dick Thornton brought some Chinese money and also a very interesting picture from Calcutta, India. The picture showed a relative of his, who is a soldier there in a jamrikisha, being pulled by a native. In the background were beautiful buildings.
Nora Jean Clifton, from Room I brought her guinea pig to show the boys and girls in Room IV. Its name is Mitye. Mitye is a reddish brown in color, and is very nice and fat. She feeds Mitye pellets, apples and other things.
Room IV is studying transportation, which is very interesting. Many of the boys and girls have brought some of their toys—such as airplanes, boats, trains, automobiles and trucks—which are displayed on a large table.
The boys and girls of the room won the Indians Statue, for this month for having the most mothers and fathers at the PTA. They are always very happy when they can win these.
ROOM V
The pupils have made Easter posters in the art class. Sixteen pupils in the room have brought defense stamps since March 1st.

The room club elected new officers. They are Wayne South, president; Pauline Davis, vice-president; John Campbell, secretary; and Charles Heavilin, treasurer.
In the fourth grade arithmetic the pupils are doing a lot of drill work on the multiplication tables. All the pupils were weighed and measured this week.
The third grade pupils are working on a newspaper in the language class. They decided to call their paper "The Third Grade Flash." They chose Kenna Gance for the editor and Richard Chew for assistant editor. Robert Lytle is the art editor and the other pupils are reporters.
ROOM VIII
Room VIII saw the moving picture "New Oregon Trails" this week. They especially enjoyed seeing familiar scenes, such as "Lithia Park," flashed upon the screen.
The Art Classes under the supervision of Miss Frances Aikins are making murals. Tempera paints and crayons are being used.
The Fifth Grade are finding fractions quite fascinating and decimals are having an equal appeal for the Sixth grade.

Phoenix Man With 3th Army in France

6th Army Group, France—Whatever the inspiration that spells the difference between mediocrity and top notch performance the veteran 905th Ordnance Company has it. The 905th, a heavy automotive maintenance unit supporting the U. S. Seventh Army in Lt. Gen. Jacob L. Devers 6th Army Group, is one of the first to chalk up and maintain a 20-a-day score, 20 wrecked vehicles completely repaired or rebuilt, painted and tested, ready for delivery into Army stock depot.
Hitting and holding the 20-a-day mark, according to Capt. Fred E. Drew, commanding officer of West Valley, N. Y., is an example of teamwork by ordnance men, expert and willing at their tasks, and seasoned by 29 months experiences overseas.
"They don't miss a trick," the captain said. "For instance an outfit like this faces a big job when time comes to move to a new locality. But in one move of 100 miles we lost just one day's production. Each man carried out his assigned task."
He was referring to mechanics, clerks, upholsterers, machinists, blacksmiths, painters, body-and-fender artists, radiator, tire and battery repair men, carpenters, inspectors and supply men—all of equal importance to the company's "assembly line" technique of mass production. General purpose vehicles, from jeep to 12 ton prime mover furnish the company its principal rebuild jobs.
These combat ordnancemen are adept at rebuilding heavy units with parts salvaged from irreparable units, meeting emergency shortages in supply. With typical American inventiveness, they have perfected shop aids that spur production. Confronted with a health hazard from carbon monoxide, they solved the problem by attaching lengths of hose to the exhausts of running motors and diverting the gases to the outdoors.
Members of the 905th Ordnance Company include: Sgt. Howard E. Denzer of Phoenix, Oregon.
