Don Huffman came back from Portland Sunday evening to spend a few weeks with his mother Mrs. Cay Huffman. Don has been singing in the night club spots in Portland and is getting quite a name for himself as a singer. While here he plans to take a few voice lessons from his mother, and will then return to Portland to his work.

Like a breath of fresh air, the editor and family enjoyed a visit from a young man from our former location in Idaho. The young man is Edmund Stanfield, an employee of Pacific Tel. and Tel. Co.

stationed at Klamath Falls. When we knew him way back when he was in the first grade. Last we had heard from him he had entered the service, but he told us that he had been in a crackup at Honolulu of a Marine Corps PBV and sustained a triple fracture of the leg and hip, and soon after being released from the hospital was discharged from the Marine Corps. He had been working as a construction crew lineman, but his injuries made it impossible for him to return to that type of work and company has moved him to a desk job. Tuesday afternoon was spent in visiting and renewing acquaintances with the young man.

The opportunity for Oregon girls to enlist in the WAVES has again been opened in the state with special emphasis being placed on enlistments to fill the need for 10,000 Hospital Corps WAVES Oregon girls who want to travel, who want to be with our fighting men and at the same time be trained for a necessary and useful profession are wanted at once.

First stop for enlistees is the U. S. Naval Training School in Naval hospital for further eight New York for eight weeks indoctrination. Those who volunteer and are selected for the Hospital Corps at completion of recruit training will be given a hospital apprentice rating and sent to a weeks training.

There are now more than 13,000 Hospital Corps WAVES on duty. Any young woman who is an American citizen, between 20 and 36 years of age, has completed at least two years of high school, has no children under 18 years of age and is in normal good health is eligible to enlist in the WAVES and wear the Navy blue.

"If we are to maintain our pledge to the men and women of the Navy that they will always have the best medical and nursing care, we must have more Hospital Corps WAVES," says Vice Admiral Ross T. McIntire, surgeon general of the Navy. "The skill of the medical officers and Corpsmen and WAVES of the Navy have established the amazing record of returning 98 per cent of all the wounded to recovery. This record must be maintained."
