Sunset Magazine Features Ashland

"There are," report William and Alice Rush, "Few places on earth where you can be as independent as you can in these Southern Oregon valleys." The Rushes were writing in the November issue of Sunset magazine about the Rogue valley.
 The Rushes were seeking a story about a homesite for a family which had partial retirement in mind. They learned that the people in the Rogue valley live as the tourists who come here live. They hunt, fish, play golf, ride horseback, and some of them do something for a living, too.
 The Rushes learned that there were many part time farmers in Jackson and Josephine counties. Ashland is covered in the story by mention of Lithia park, which was designed by John McLaren, developer of San Francisco's world famed Golden Gate park; and the Elizabethan theater, scene of the annual Shakespearean festival.

Mrs. Dee Dalten, 247 2nd Avenue, who was called to Klamath Falls last week due to the illness of her father, Mr. Short, has returned and reports his condition improved.

Ella Pellingier, 940 B street, patient at the Mitchel Rest Home on North Main street. wife of J. R. Pellingier is a new street was a Medford shopper Tuesday.

The AMERICAN WAY

On this Armistice Day we feel it is fitting to call attention to the American way of life and to remind citizens of this community that this envied style and standard of living remains preserved by the sacrifices of the men who served in the armed forces of the United States. Men of this community and every city in the land fought valiantly for our country which they held dearer than life.

This period of our history is not a time for weakness. The lessons of two great wars in a single generation have warned us of the terrible cost of being unprepared.

Armistice Day, 1947, is a fitting occasion for reminding the American people of the need for men of high morale, well-trained and well-equipped, in the armed forces. It is a time for doing honor not only to those who made sacrifices in two world wars, but to those whose mission it is to prevent a third.

It is a time for every American to RESOLVE THAT AMERICA SHALL STAY STRONG!
