Minerals of Pakistan

Although Pakistan has some oil and considerable coal, the major share by far of these industrial raw materials is found on the Hindu side of India. There are extensive supplies of coal, iron and manganese, essential to heavy industry, in the Jamshepur region, as well as scattered about in central and other areas of the far-flung Hindu territory. India's famous sheet mica, vital in radio and aircraft engines, comes largely from the Hindu sections of Bihar and Madras. During the war strategic minerals were discovered in the north-central states of the new Dominion of India.
