Will Save Salmon Waste At present about 30 per cent of the weight of 360 million pounds yearly Alaskan salmon catch is dumped in the ocean or allowed to rot at the canneries. This waste includes the head, collar, tail piece, liver, roe, milt and other parts. The U. S. department of commerce believes that these wastes may be turned into vitamins, hormones and amino acids as well as other products having an annual value of 10 million dollars. The department is undertaking a development program for utilization of these waste parts.

Increase Sorghum Profits Sorghum research by the Oklahoma station has yielded information as to the most satisfactory varieties for grain, forage and sirup in various parts of Oklahoma, and more productive forage and grain varieties have been developed. The annual value of this research is estimated at three million dollars for production of grain, six million dollars for forage and one million dollars for sirup.

Dobbin on Decline The horse population of the world suffered a decline of more than 20 per cent during the war years. Between 1938 and 1946 the number of horses in the world fell from almost 95 million to about 75 million. Not all these losses were war casualties, many more were victims of mechanization.

Know Your Cotton Laws Sale of cotton goods was forbidden in England in 1700 because it competed with native wool. Long before this, in India, about 5,000 years ago, cloth began to be made of cotton. Ancient ruins of Peru, show that the people who lived in the Andes made cotton cloth even before it was manufactured in India. The Pueblo Indians, in what is now New Mexico grew cotton and made blankets of it. U. S. produces half of the cotton of the world. The invention of the cotton gin by Eli Whitney in 1793 made U. S. the leading cotton country of the world.
