Snug looking and low, this house was carefully designed to permit economical construction without neglecting any of the requirements for comfortable, enjoyable living. The dwelling has been selected by American Builder magazine, 30 Church St. New York 7, N. Y., as its Plan No. 36.

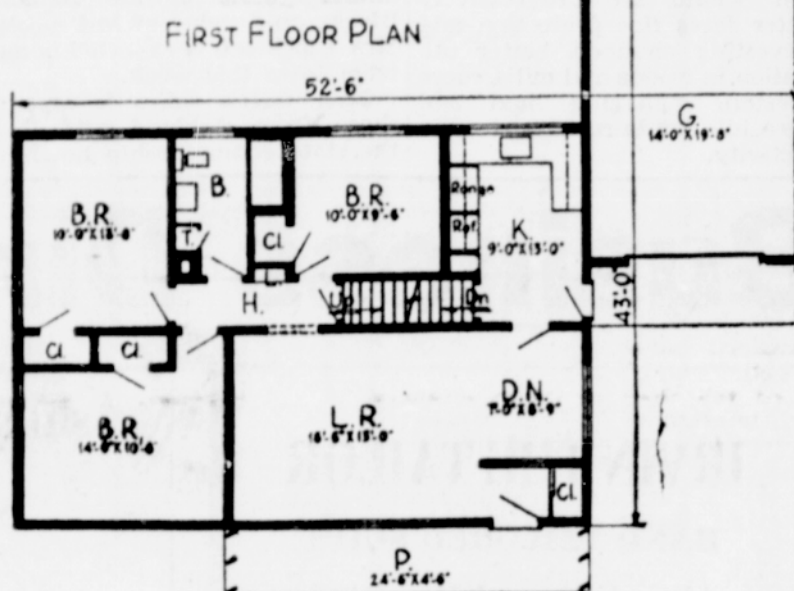

American Builder says that Walter T. Anickas, the architect, has adopted practical design, sound planning and simple framing as architectural principals and thus "comes up with a house that can be reproduced in permanent materials at an absolute minimum cost."

The large, divided front window is a feature of Plan No. 36. With the adjoining plywood panels, a striking central motif is created. Even more interest can be added by the use of dark, contrasting colors near the entrance way.

Contrasting materials also are used on the gable ends and the garage door. For the roof, the architect suggests shingles of a color which will harmonize pleasingly with other exterior hues of the house and with the colors of neighboring dwellings.

The dwelling has three bedrooms, each of ample size. The dining alcove is an extension of the living room, in the modern, informal manner. The kitchen is situated for convenience to the dining alcove.

(Detailed estimating plans and a complete home planning packet of building information are available from American Builder, 30 Church St., New York 7, N. Y. Refer to Plan No. 46.)
