Little Business And Big Government

Nation's Business recently ran an article by Henry C. Link of the Psychological Corporation dealing with a survey made among "little business" to find out what this section of our industrial economy thinks of "big business."

One of the questions was: "Would you rather compete with a private company (large or small) or with a government corporation?" Ninety two per cent replied that they would rather compete with a private company, as against a mere four per cent favoring a government owned business. The remaining four per cent didn't know.

Another question asked: "Which, if any, of the following has produced the most difficult problems for your business: large companies, labor unions, government bureaus, other small companies?" When the answers were tabulated, it was found that 58 per cent said the government bureaus had produced the toughest problems. Large companies and labor unions followed, with but 20 per cent each.

It is clear from this that the smaller businesses of the country now realize that super-government is the worst menace they face — and that, though competition with other business may be difficult, to compete with government is virtually impossible. Government has every advantage, it is free from taxes, regulation and legislation that applies to other business. It makes laws to suit itself.

The people can control big business or little business. They can't control big government. It can hamstring and dominate all business, regardless of size.

Press Conference Will Open Friday

UNIVERSITY OF OREGON, Eugene, (Special) — The 31st annual Oregon Press Conference will begin Feb. 17 on the University of Oregon campus. News-men from all parts of the state will join with members of the school of journalism faculty in presenting a program of speeches and panel discussions.

News and editorial problems will be the theme of the two-day meeting which is sponsored by the Oregon Newspaper Publishers Association and the school of journalism. About 175 persons are expected to attend the conference.

Marquis W. Childs, well-known author and journalist will be the principal speaker at the fourth annual Eric W. Allen Memorial Fund lecturer. A syndicated column on political affairs by Childs appears in the Oregonian. His speech Feb. 17 will be on news coverage in the nation's capital.

John H. Travis, publisher of the Hood River Daily Sun and president of the conference, has arranged a busy program for the newsmen.

The HISTORY of ELECTRICITY

THE FUSE THAT PROTECTS YOUR HOUSE IS ONE OF THE SIMPLEST ELECTRICAL INSTRUMENTS IN USE TODAY. BUT THE FUSE OR CIRCUIT BREAKER USED TO PROTECT OUR GIANT TRANSMISSION LINES IS HUNDREDS OF TIMES GREATER. BUT LARGE AS THE CIRCUIT BREAKER IS, IT IS SO DELICATE IN OPERATION THAT IT CAN BREAK THE LINE IN 1/10th OF A SECOND AT THE FIRST HINT OF DANGER.
