Sea Spiders of Antarctic: Spend Lives in Cold Seas

Sea-spiders swarm in Antarctic waters. The cold seas which lash the southern continent seem to be the natural habitat of these strange little creatures, ancient and remote relatives of crabs, lobsters, spiders, and scorpions.

A representative collection of these tiny-bodied, long-legged water animals was made by the 1947-1948 navy Antarctic expedition and turned over to the U.S. national museum for study.

The little creatures of the cold seas have somewhat the general appearance and habits of spiders, and it is generally agreed by zoologists that the two forms come from a common ancestor. Most of them spend their lives crawling over seaweed and lower marine animals, from which they suck the juices.

One hitherto undescribed form, listed as a new species, was found by Joel W. Hedgpeth, who made a taxonomic study of the collection. The collections were made from Marguerite Bay, site of one of Admiral Byrd's base camps on the western coast of the Palmer Peninsula, and from the offshore waters of Peter Island. Mr. Hedgpeth also included in his study small previous collections from South Georgia and the Falkland Islands.

How to Lose Weight

You can lose weight and at the same time enjoy appetizing meals. If you want to lose weight, nutritionists recommend a sane, well-balanced diet that includes all the foods necessary for good health. This is described as a sensible diet liberally sprinkled with patience and will power. It's the sum total of everything you eat that counts. Don't blame the potatoes, bread or dessert. You gain weight when you eat more food calories than your body needs and uses. Eat plenty of vegetables, but go easy on butter, rich sauces and salad dressing. Skim-milk will supply calcium as well as whole milk, and fruits should be eaten with little or no sugar.

Home Storage Problem

Homemakers dream about storage space—and more space, in new homes and old. But there are ways to make those dreams come true. Plan what you need in storage space in your home, considering the needs of every member of the family. Have a specific plan in black and white before the carpenter or builder arrives to start work. It's even better if you have worked out a plan, laid it aside for awhile and then reworked it. If you have done this you will be more satisfied with closets and cupboards after they are constructed.

Hambletonian, famous trotter, was the son of Abdallah and a crippled cast-off known as the Charles Kent mare. While the sire was a descendant of Messenger, famous English stallion brought to America in 1801, Hambletonian's dam was so no-account that Jonas Seely, Jr., was glad to unload both the mare and her gangling foal on Rysdyk who had to scrape up the needed $125 from friends to get his dubious horseflesh. Before the Orange County Dutchman died in 1870, six years before Hambletonian, he was a wealthy man from the variously estimated stud fees (between $183,000 and $300,000) earned by the great stallion.
