Winther of Bloomington, Ind. During their Oregon stay they and the Galeys plan to drive to Sweet Home for a few days with John Galeys.

Mr. and Mrs. Wans have both completed two years of civilian service with the navy on the island of Guam.

Traffic Death Toll Up 29% Over 1949

Traffic deaths in Oregon are increasing at a rate far above the average increase reported by the rest of the nation, Secretary of State Earl T. Newbry revealed today.

The state's death toll in the first eight months of 1950 jumped 29 per cent over the number killed during the same period last year. Average increase for all other states was 11 per cent.

California showed a 2 per cent gain while Washington traffic fatalities climbed 8 per cent.

For Oregon, worst months of the year thus far were July and August when a total of 106 persons were killed, the secretary reported. He warned that the remaining months, with early darkness and slippery road surfaces adding to the usual dangers, may match or exceed the mid-summer toll.

Drivers Exams Planned Monday

Drivers license examinations will be given at the Ashland city hall next Monday between 9 a.m. and 4 p.m., according to an announcement from the secretary of state's office.

Those wishing to take the examination are asked to get in touch with the examiner well ahead of the closing hour in order that their applications may be completed without delay.

Funds Ready For School Lunches

Oregon schools participating in the national school lunch program have been allocated $608,130 for local food purchases during the 1950-51 school year, it has been announced by the U.S. department of agriculture's production and marketing administration.

The allocation represents an increase of $37,402 over the amount received for the last school year when 519 out of the state's 1,543 secondary and elementary schools participated. About 68,000 out of a total 247,000 Oregon children enrolled in the schools received lunches under the program.

In addition to federal funds allocated to repay participating schools in part for their local food purchases, schools receive the bulk of surplus foods delivered by the USDA to state distributing agencies. During the 1949-50 school year, Oregon schools received more than 5,296,000 pounds of surplus foods valued at $858,361.
