

PHONE PICKETS BATTLE POLICE . . . Striking telephone equipment workers tangled with police in West Philadelphia recently for about 45 minutes in an attempt to bar Bell telephone operators from the West Philadelphia Trinity exchange. This scene shows burly policemen taking two protesting pickets in tow for removal by police wagon following the general melee. A total of 11 strikers were placed under arrest during the disorders which threatened to disrupt telephone service in the Philadelphia area. The demonstration was the first attempt by striking Western Electric workers to prevent operators from going to work. Strike was settled when W.E. workers were given a wage raise.

SNYDER ASKS 75 PER CENT TAX ON WAR PROFITS . . . Treasury secretary John Snyder (left), shown with Chairman Robert L. Doughton (D., N.C.) of the house ways and means committee, proposed to congress recently that the war profits of corporations be taxed 75 per cent to bring in the additional $4,000,000 annually asked by President Truman. The philosophy behind the request is that as long as wars are exceedingly profitable to a large number of business concerns, here and abroad, fighting will continue to occur. Snyder was the first witness before the ways and means committee.

WASHES HIS HANDS OF WHOLE THING . . . Gambling boss Mickey Cohen stands in the wings waiting to become the chief witness at a session of Senator Estes Kefauver's crime investigating committee. The committee held a two-day hearing in Los Angeles. Cohen appeared in answer to a subpoena and was asked to explain how his expenses were so high and his reported income so low.

CHAMP MEETS CHAMP . . . Cincinnati heavyweight boxing champion, Ezzard Charles, called upon Senator Robert A. Taft recently in Cincinnati. Charles congratulated Taft upon his kayo of Joe Ferguson in Ohio's senatorial race recently. Taft, in turn, wished Charles well in his next fight. Taft here is assuming the role of the "new" Taft, the warm, personable "regular fellow" in contrast with his former portrayal of the cool, calculating political brain and aloof statesman.

SEEKS HAVEN . . . Grandson of king of Nepal arrives at New Delhi airport. The king was exiled by the prime minister, whose daughter, it is reported, will marry another small grandson of the exiled king.

STILL CONFIDENT . . . President Truman wears his usual grin as he leaves his yacht "Williamsburg" after cruise on the Potomac. The chief executive gives no manifestation of disappointment over the outcome of the recent elections.

Attacks Foreign Policy

SEN. ROBERT A. TAFT, fresh from his overwhelming personal triumph at the polls in Ohio, lost little time upon his return to Washington in raising questions concerning the administration's foreign policy which he pounded consistently during his campaign. The Ohio leader declared there is no such thing in this country as an isolationist and said that any one who called another an "isolationist" was an "idiot." Then he questioned whether the American people would stand the expense of a 3,000,000-man army and the military program to sustain it, and whether or not we are depending too much on western Europe and the North Atlantic pact nations as our allies. These may be substantial and valid questions to raise and will undoubtedly be subject to review by the next congress. Senator Taft, however, provided no answers to his questions and, according to many, he should have asked at least another question. If we are to assume as Senator Taft does, that we cannot depend upon our European allies and that the American people will not stand for a big army and the planned military program now getting underway, then where do we go from there? How will we defend the United States and our own security?

A Moral Issue

The annual report before the 84th annual convention of the National Grange was written by its late master, Albert S. Goss, and read posthumously to the delegates by Henry D. Sherwood, who succeeded Goss as master upon the latter's untimely death. Goss's report, finished only a few days prior to his death, October 25, called for an austerity program for the American people, a vigorous appeal to combat world-wide communism, compulsory military training, a stiff excess profits tax, heavier individual and corporate taxes, rationed supplies where necessary and a program of austerity "sufficient to devote all our resources to winning lasting peace." In a scathing denunciation of communism, Goss had written that it cannot be defeated by military operations alone. "It is a moral issue," he wrote, "which will not be settled until it is settled right; and while we have no right to impose our ideas upon others we have the right and an obligation to other nations to see that all are free to follow their own beliefs in their own way . . . the United States must continue to support and strengthen the United Nations, and at the same time prepare to do our full part to see that its principles are respected throughout the world. The one greatest hope of the United Nations is America's preparedness to back it with force if necessary."

Squads Like to Fly

Hearings before the civil aeronautics board on petitions by airlines for new routes brought out the tremendous growth of flying by "charter" from the regular airlines. One outstanding example as reported by Capital Airlines was the use of airplanes for transporting college and professional football teams, that company alone flying more than 40 teams during the football season. This is not confined to the big professional or college teams like Notre Dame, Ohio State, Purdue, Cleveland Browns and others, but many small colleges use planes to transport their teams. These include Clemson, Manhattan, Duquesne, William and Mary, John Carroll, Georgetown, Wayne, Bowling Green and many others. It looks like the airplane is here to stay.

Controls Tricky Question

It seems that most everybody is in favor of controls except for himself. That's the experience of the national production authority, control agency in charge of allocation and priorities for materials such as steel, aluminum and all other raw materials. They are receiving at the rate of 50 wires and letters daily asking that particular industry be placed on the "essential" list. These petitions are coming from both small and large industries. One of the biggest is the refrigerator industry which seeks to have refrigerators and freezers declared as essential to the war effort. Their argument runs like this: Farmers are urged to raise more food. Food is necessary to the war effort. Without refrigeration food will be wasted.

New Committee Members

Defeat of some senators means new committee chairmen. Allen J. Ellender (D-La.) will replace Elmer Thomas, Oklahoma, as chairman of agriculture. Richard B. Russell (D-Ga.) replaces Millard Tydings, Maryland, chairman senate armed services. James E. Murray, (D-Mont.) will replace Elbert D. Thomas, Utah, on Senate labor and public relations. Graham Barden (D-N.C.) replaces John Lesinski, Michigan, on labor.
