No "Panfish"

It's always nice when some one in your own field comes forth with facts or viewpoint supporting your own, so it is with little pleasure that we pass along here what another outdoor writer has to say about the bluegill, or 'bream,' as he is also known.

At any rate, here's what A. E. "Abe" Andrews, outdoor writer of Syracuse, Ind., adds to the reputation of the bluegill:

"First—the name itself. The crapple may be a panfish; the bullhead may be a panfish; even the rock bass and perch may be so called in my very humble judgment; but:

One of Gamest
"Your bluegill is one of the very gamest fish on the American continent. It definitely is not a 'panfish.' A 9-inch bluegill is just as strong and gamy as any 9-inch rainbow. Size for size, the bluegill is just as game as any fish that swims.

"For my own fishing, I would rate the brook trout first, the rainbow second, the brown trout third, the bluegill fourth of all the fish I have ever caught. If the bluegill lived in fast water I would place it third.

"PLEASE, please, to save some of us game fishermen from embarrassment, not to say 'insult'—quit calling your bluegills panfish.

Use Fly Rod
To the man who has never attempted it, here are some ideas or suggestions:

"If you already have a fly rod, use it for your bluegill fishing no matter what its weight. But, if you have no fly rod and wish to join a lot of us old-timers in fly fishing for bluegills, get a rod 7 to 8 feet long and rather light but not lighter than 4 ounces.

"Use a light leader, not heavier than four pounds test or even lighter if you can resist putting on too much pressure. The leader should be at least 7 feet and longer would be better if a level line is used as a level line makes more disturbance.

Fire Control

A new method to assist in forest fire control in West Virginia has been introduced by the conservation commission. It consists in the use of "fire wagons" for fighting fires which can be reached with motor vehicles.

The "wagons" are one-ton jeep trucks which have been converted into pumpers through installation of Panama pumps. The latter, designed especially for such purpose, are manufactured by a Mississippi concern and have been on the market for several years.

The commission's forestry division recently completed installations in five trucks. One of these is kept at each of the following district headquarters: Middlebourne, Romney, Buckhannon, Ripley and Summersville. Districts 5 and 6, with headquarters at Hamlin and Beckley, are without the new equipment.

Best Bucket

The best bucket for ice fishing is a big one of about five-gallon capacity, with a lid. It will hold enough minnows for a couple of days' fishing for several anglers, and because it holds more water, it won't freeze up so quickly.

Slow Appreciation

In 1751, a Swedish scientist named Cronstedt obtained a sample of ore and succeeded in separating from it a metal previously unknown to science. He named the newly-discovered metal "Nickel". Until the beginning of the 20th century—in fact, well into this century—nickel was little appreciated and less sought after. To scientists, it was a metal twice as abundant in the earth's crust as copper, zinc and lead combined.

Fix It Note

The handyman (or woman) around the house will not lose or misplace screws when removing storm doors and windows if they are firmly attached to each frame with cellophane tape. The same method may be applied to screen doors and windows. Incidentally, if there's a small break in the screen, it may be mended with cellophane tape. It will hold indefinitely.
