Fujita was the pilot who dropped the first bomb on United States soil, just west of Brookings, Oregon, during World War II. In his later years, Fujita became a pacifist and reached out to the town. In the 1990s, he donated $1,000 to the Brookings Public Library with a request that the funds be used to create a collection of children's books about other cultures. The exhibit about Fujita and his bequest was created by photographer Nolan Calisch. For info, call (503) 988-5370 or visit <events.multcolib.org>.
