Manny Pacquiao back on top after Bradley win

By Greg Beacham
AP Sports Writer

LAS VEGAS — The old Manny Pacquiao returned for thrilling bursts, hounding Timothy Bradley onto the ropes and battering the welterweight champion with whip-quick combinations that recalled the Pacman's magical prime.

The older Pacquiao couldn't finish the trick, however.

Although he tried mightily, Pacquiao didn't stop or even really hurt Bradley during 12 mostly exciting rounds, settling for the lucrative revenge of a unanimous-decision victory.

"I didn't want to get careless," Pacquiao said.

Pacquiao (56-5-2) proved he is still one of the world's most exciting boxers with his second straight win, even if he might never recapture his most destructive form. His hands and footwork are still inimitable, but the eight-division world champion's power and timing weren't good enough to stop Bradley — or any of his opponents since late 2009, the date of his last knockout.

Pacquiao apologetically showed up to his post-fight news conference well after midnight at the MGM Grand Garden, a large bandage concealing 32 stitches in a deep gash on his left eyebrow from a headbutt. Trainer Freddie Roach had filled the time by praising his fighter while simultaneously acknowledging Pacquiao's days of highlight-reel knockouts have faded.

"I think he was doing his best to stop him," Roach said. "He was throwing combinations. I told him, 'All you have to do is outbox this guy. You can outbox him in and out, all night long.' ... I thought he had the killer instinct. When he had (Bradley) on the ropes, he opened up pretty well. It just didn't seem
