ROBERT R. DOZONO

Through November 28

Tuesday through Saturday: 11:00am to 5:00pm
Blackfish Gallery, 420 N.W. Ninth Avenue, Portland

View "Garbage Paintings and Other Works," an exhibit by Robert R. Dozono. The painting series incorporates trash he collects on fishing trips to the Clackamas River and elsewhere in Oregon as well as discarded packaging from his daily household use. The artist carefully arranges the objects on large, irregularly shaped canvasses, selectively concealing parts with oil paint, causing them to recede into the picture plane and resolve into loose, colorful landscape images. Also on display is a series of charcoal, ink, and watercolor drawings of a felled, 156-year-old oak tree. For more information, call (503) 224-2634 or visit <www.blackfish.com>.
