London's Land of the Lions display will soon feature Asiatic lions

INDIA IN ENGLAND. A Hanuman Langur monkey looks through a glass enclosure, part of the new Land of the Lions display in London, on March 17, 2016. The Queen and Prince Philip visited London to view the exhibit, which will transport visitors from the heart of London to India's vibrant Sasan Gir, where they can take a closer look at the mighty Asiatic lions, when it opens officially in April. Guests are able to traverse three walkways that cover the 2,500-square-meter exhibit, which also features an India-themed train station, crumbling temple clearing, high street, and guard hut. SYDNEY — If Malaysia Airlines Flight 370 is ever found, the wreckage will immediately present a host of new questions before it's likely to provide answers about the plane's disappearance more than two years ago.

What will be recovered? Who will pay for it? How much evidence has already been lost forever? Some key issues that will crop up if the plane is located include:

Much could remain in ocean

Given that the Boeing 777 is believed to be in waters as deep as four miles, there are no plans to bring the entire plane to the surface, said Martin Dolan, chief commissioner of the Australian Transport Safety Bureau (ATSB), which is running the search.

Crews will instead focus on retrieving the parts of the aircraft that are most likely to yield clues into its fate, such as the "black box" data and voice recorders, and the remains of the 239 passengers and crew.

Joint effort

Australia would be in charge of any recovery effort, but because that would involve victim identification and retrieval, it would work closely with Malaysia, which is in charge of the investigation. Black boxes and other aircraft parts would be taken to ATSB headquarters in the
