Japan space rovers lowered to asteroid to collect data

SCIENTIFIC SPACECRAFT. This computer graphic image provided by the Japan Space Exploration Agency (JAXA) shows two drum-shaped and solar-powered Minerva-II-1 rovers on an asteroid. Japanese unmanned spacecraft Hayabusa2 approached as close as 180 feet to the asteroid to lower the rovers, waited for a minute, and then rose back to its waiting position about 12 miles above the surface. See story on page 16. (JAXA via AP)
