China building boom uncovers buried dinosaurs, makes a star

FOSSIL FINDS. A dinosaur model stands near the site of a future dinosaur museum in Yanji, China. Paleontologist Xu Xing opened a dig site in Yanji after construction crews erecting new apartment buildings accidentally uncovered dinosaur bones and other fossils dating back 100 million years. China's rapid city building has churned up a motherlode of dinosaur fossils. While bulldozers have unearthed prehistoric sites in many countries, the scale and speed of China's urbanization is unprecedented, according to the United Nations Development Program.
