

NEW ON NETFLIX. This image released by Netflix shows Takayuki Yamada, left, who stars in "The Naked Director," striking a pensive pose with co-star Misato Morita. The key challenge for Netflix in Japan lies with producing attractive original content, and featuring directors, actors, and writers out of Japan, not just licensing Japanese TV shows and movies. (Netflix via AP)

Netflix woos Japan with new original series about a reporter

Continued from page 12

Netflix officials say some Amazon users may use its online retail services without watching streaming content.

Netflix's director of content acquisition, Kaata Sakamoto, has been with Netflix since its Japan launch five years ago. He said hardly anyone expressed interest in making content for Netflix at first.

One hit among its original Japanese content has been its "The Naked Director," based on the life of a pornography filmmaker. It premiered last year and a second season is being shot.

The chance to pursue topics shunned by mainstream TV coupled with access to global audiences makes Netflix potentially appealing for content creators, according to Motohiro Tokuriku, an expert on net trends who works at Japanese online content platform Note.

"I used to have the theory that Japanese are too used to viewing TV for free, and won't ever sign up for paid streaming services, but that's definitely changing," Tokuriku said.

Worldwide grief: Death toll from coronavirus tops 1 million

Continued from page 16

Armacao dos Buzios. She also stood up for her neighbors in Rasa, a poor community filled with the descendants of escaped slaves, becoming their voice in a fight for land rights.

"She brought something to Rasa that no politician would bring: self-confidence," said Rejane Oliveira, her niece and disciple.

When the elder Oliveira died in June at 79, Buzios' mayor decreed three days of mourning. But city hall ruled out holding a ceremony. Because of the virus, officials said, it wasn't safe to gather.

For all its lethality, the virus has claimed far fewer lives than the so-called Spanish flu, which killed an estimated 40 million to 50 million worldwide in two years, just over a century ago.

That pandemic came before scientists had microscopes powerful enough to identify the enemy or antibiotics that could treat the bacterial pneumonia that killed most of the victims. In the U.S., the Spanish flu killed about 675,000. But most of those deaths did not come until a second wave hit over the winter of 1918-1919.

Up to now, the disease has left only a faint footprint on Africa, well shy of early modelling that predicted thousands more

But cases have recently surged in countries like Britain, Spain, Russia, and Israel. In the United States, the return of students to college campuses has sparked new outbreaks. With approval and distribution of a vaccine still probably months away and winter approaching in the Northern Hemisphere, the toll will continue to climb.

"We're only at the beginning of this. We're going to see many more weeks ahead of this pandemic than we've had behind us," Gostin said. Already, though, far too many grieve.

"This pandemic has ruined my family," said Rajendra Chaudhary, who lost his son, the young Indian doctor, and then his wife. "All our aspirations, our dreams, everything is finished."

Associated Press writers Nicole Winfield in Rome, Suman Naishadham in Phoenix, and David Biller in Rio de Janeiro contributed to this story. Jain reported from New Delhi and Geller from New York.

Taiwanese talent win top prizes at Golden Melody Awards home many of the top Taiwan's minority tribes, Awards, which attracts celebrities and musicians from across the Chinesespeaking world and is the regional equivalent of the Grammy Awards.

Wu Qingfeng, Taiwanese singer, won Best Male Vocalist in Mandarin for his first solo album Spaceman.

Waa Wei, another Taiwanese singer, won Best Female Vocalist in Mandarin for her 2019 Hiddenalbum NotForgotten. She cried as she accepted her award, thanking her parents in "heaven."

Taiwanese singer Abao, who had eight nominations, won three awards for her album Kinakaian (Mother Tongue), including prizes at the island's sings in a mixture of Taiwanese band, won the languages, including her tribe's Paiwan language.

> Mandarin award went to Joanna Wang for Love is Calling Me. Wang was born in Taiwan but grew up in the United States.

Hong Kong singer

TAIPEI, Taiwan (AP) — Album of the Year. Abao, G.E.M., meanwhile, won the jury's pick.

> Fire Ex, a local award for Best Band. The rock band wrote a song that The Best Album in became the anthem for the island's so-called sunflower movement, a student-led movement that against Taiwan becoming economically closer to China.

Affordable Retirement Living

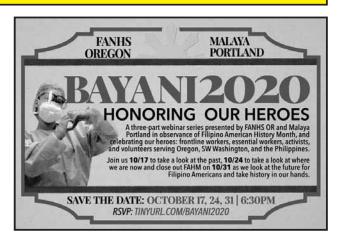

- · STUDIO, ONE BEDROOM, AND MOBILITY IMPAIRED APARTMENTS
- FEDERAL RENT SUBSIDIES AVAILABLE
- No Buy-In or Application Fees
- Affordable Rent 30% of ADJUSTED GROSS INCOME
- · IDEAL URBAN LOCATION NEAR RESTAURANTS, SHOPPING, PUBLIC TRANSPORTATION, AND ⊕ & MEDICAL FACILITIES

503-224-3559 www.ChaucerCourt.com

For timely information about upcoming events, visit <www.facebook.com/TheAsianReporter>.

Give blood.

To schedule a blood donation call 1-800-GIVE-LIFE or visit HelpSaveALife.org.

MAKE A PLAN TO VOTE!

- 1) Register to vote (or check your registration online)
 - 2) Get your ballet
 - 3) Mark your ballet
 - 4) Return your ballot by mail or a dropbox
 - 5) Have a VOICE and make a difference

Important dates in Oregon:

Week of October 5:

Voters' Pamphlet start to be mailed to all residential households

October 13: Voter registration deadline

October 14: Ballots begin to be mailed to voters

October 27: Last day to safely return your ballot by mail via USPS. (After October 27, voters should deliver their ballot to an official drop site.)

November 3: General Election (ballots are due no later than 8:00pm)

November 23: Final election results certified

State of Oregon voter website:

https://sos.oregon.gov/voting-elections/Pages/default.aspx

