Endangered Sumatran baby orangutan named “Madu,” Malay for “honey”

ENDANGERED ADDITION. Sumatran orangutan Reese is seen holding her infant daughter, “Madu,” which means “honey” in Malay, at the Audubon Zoo in New Orleans on May 3, 2021. The baby is the first for mother Reese. The International Union for Conservation of Nature says fewer than 14,000 individuals live in the wild, and their numbers are declining dramatically. See story on page 11. (Audubon Nature Institute via AP)
