Adopted U.S. moguls skier eyes return to China as an Olympian

MOGUL MASTER. Kai Owens of the United States flies over a jump during the World Cup women's freestyle moguls skiing competition in Deer Valley, Utah, in this February 4, 2021 file photo. As an infant, she was abandoned at a town square in a province of China. Taken to an orphanage, she was adopted by a couple from Colorado at 16 months old. Now 17, U.S. freestyle skier Kai Owens is on the verge of earning a spot in moguls for the Winter Games in Beijing. It's a return to China she's long thought about. See story on page 9.
