

Humors Feed on Humors

The Sooner You Get Rid of Them the Better.

In the Spring there's an effort of Nature to cleanse your system.

You know this by the pimples and other eruptions on your face and body.

In the Spring, therefore, is the best time to take

Hood's Sarsaparilla

For the quickest results.

But whenever taken, this great medicine thoroughly cleanses the system, gets into all its nooks and corners, removes all humors and all unhealthy accumulations.

"Hood's Sarsaparilla is an excellent blood purifier. We had a little boy with whose hands and face were broken out with sores. We gave him Hood's Sarsaparilla and the sores soon disappeared." JOHN SCHWAB, Nipomo, Cal.

THE KAISER'S DANGER.

Suffering from a Malady the End of Which is Insanity.

Medical papers in various parts of Europe are now seriously discussing the mental condition of the German Emperor and seem pretty unanimous in their expression that he is suffering from "nervous disease," resulting from "constitutional causes." Along the same line purely secular papers openly discuss the necessity of a regency in the empire. It is said that the inevitable end of the malady from which the Kaiser is suffering is insanity, and there is no means known to medical science by which this lamentable result can be averted. Williams' disease is the same malady as that with which King Frederick William IV. of Prussia, granduncle of the Kaiser, was stricken, and which culminated in his insanity. He was not, however, deprived of the reins of government and placed under restraint until he had astounded and shocked all Europe by his extraordinary vagaries and extravagant utterances.

DR. J. C. WILLIAMS.

There are many traits of resemblance between this monarch and Emperor William. Both have been remarkable for their generous impulses and for their paradoxical combination of a liberalism akin to downright socialism with autocratic and absolutist ideas worthy of the Middle Ages. Like the Kaiser, King Frederick William was animated by the most noble and high-minded intentions, was anxious to right every wrong, and to assume the part toward his subjects in particular of an all-wise and far-seeing Providence.

In the event of the failure of the Kaiser's mental powers, the regent of the empire would be his eldest son, the crown prince, who is not yet 19 years old. Placing the reins of power in such youthful hands would be a risky experiment and hence the grave apprehension which pervades the governments of Europe over the Kaiser's condition.—Utica Globe.

SHATTERED IN HEALTH.

John S. Sargent, the Artist, Has Laid Aside His Brush.

It is a source of deep regret to a host of admirers that the health of John S. Sargent has given way, and that for a year at least this distinguished American artist will be unable to follow his profession. As a painter of portraits, Professor Sargent has no equal in the world. His paintings adorn some of the finest galleries in the world and he is one of the few Americans who are members of the Royal Academy of France. Sargent was born in Florence in 1856, of American parents, and was reared in luxury. He studied art in the studio of Carolus-Duran, and at 23 his work showed such merit that he received honorable mention in the salon. Thereafter he rose splendidly in favor among artists and lovers of his pictures until the demand for his pictures became so great that he broke down in attempting to supply them.

When it is said that a man has received notice of the serious illness of a relative, and is "holding himself in readiness," it means that he has a night shirt in a grip and has looked up the railroad time cards.

GRIP'S RAVAGES

After-Effects Are Often Worse Than the Trouble Itself—How They May Be Avoided and Good Health Restored.

From the Journal, Kansas City, Mo.

Following every epidemic of the grip there remains a trail of after effects which are often worse than the trouble itself and which seem to baffle all efforts of physicians. A specific, however, has been found which not only will quickly restore the health after an attack of grip and expel the lingering germs, but, working through the blood will render the system proof against the disease. In hundreds of cases it has been shown that Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People have accomplished this result. One of the many recent cures is that of Mrs. J. B. Shaw, of 2101 Bellefontaine avenue, Kansas City, Mo., who says:

"When the grip was epidemic here I was one of its victims and the disease left me in a bad state. I formerly had an excellent memory, but after the attack I could scarcely remember anything. I had severe pains in the top and back of my head and was dizzy by spells. I would lie awake until nearly morning and then fall into a sleep that was not restful. My heart action was weak and I was a victim of nervousness. In fact my health was shattered by the attack of the grip and recovery seemed hopeless.

"After being afflicted in this manner for several weeks, I happened to read an advertisement of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People. Thinking they might do me good, I began taking them at once. In three days I was much better and could sleep like a child at night. After using a box of the pills my memory was restored and I felt greatly encouraged. I continued taking them until I had used three boxes and was in better health than I had enjoyed for several years.

"If a stamped envelope is sent for reply I will gladly answer all inquiries relating to my case."

Signed, MRS. J. B. SHAW.

INDIAN GIRL'S ROMANCE.

Enters Harvard Because Her Ancestor Spared a White Man.

Wah-ta-waso, a full-blooded Penobscot Indian girl, will soon enter Harvard University.

The girl's Indian name means Bright Eyes, and she is said to be pretty enough and intelligent enough to be worthy of the name.

There is a romantic story connected with the girl's proposed entrance into Harvard. Montague Chamberlain, recorder of the Lawrence Scientific School at Harvard, has taken the Indian girl under his protection because one of her ancestors spared the life of one of his forefathers.

About the time of the French and Indian war some of the Penobscots, who had wandered from Maine to the St. Lawrence, joined the Indians under the French and made a raid into English territory, including an attack on Ticonderoga. With the English force was a trader from Boston named Chamberlain, who got into a hand-to-hand conflict with a powerful Penobscot Indian. In the struggle they clinched, but the redskin was the better wrestler and threw the white. Chamberlain managed to regain his feet and start on a run, but the Indian overtook him, and, having picked up a club, knocked Chamberlain down before he could use his knife. The strength and courage of the white evidently won the admiration of the Indian, for as he stood over Chamberlain with club in hand the Penobscot said in English:

"I like you. Make you my son. You good fighter."

Chamberlain was accordingly treated as a prisoner and was taken to the Indian village of St. Francis, on the St. Lawrence River. While he was permitted to roam freely about the village, the Indians kept a watchful eye on him, and he knew he was a captive. He learned, however, to like the Indian life and remained three years. Then in a fit of homesickness he decided to go home, but the captor refused to let him depart. Chamberlain had won the hearts of many of the squaws by lending them a helping hand in their drudgery, and some of the maidens of the tribe aided him in escaping under cover of darkness. He afterward became a man of consequence in Boston, and the university professor of to-day is one of his descendants.

The Penobscot Indians in time returned to Maine and settled on the island in the Penobscot River, which is still their home. Montague Chamberlain in the course of his investigations discovered that Wah-ta-waso was descended from the Indian who had taken his ancestor captive at Ticonderoga, and took it upon himself to give her an opportunity to gain an excellent education. She has had the advantage of common and high schools, and is now preparing to enter the Harvard annex next spring. Mr. Chamberlain has helped a number of the Penobscots to go to Carlisle, and he has built them a library on their island.

The Steam Locomotive Doomed.

It is claimed that within a few years the electric motor will completely supplant the steam locomotive, and trains will then rush along at a speed of 100 miles an hour. To travelers this will prove a great blessing, but no more so than Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, has proved a blessing to those who wish to regain their health quickly. The Bitters cure dyspepsia, indigestion, biliousness, malaria, fever and ague, also improves the appetite and purifies the blood.

and Manalin. I have been afflicted more or less for a quarter of a century with catarrh of the stomach and constipation; a residence in Washington has increased these troubles.

A few bottles of your medicines have given me almost complete relief, and I am sure that a continuation of their use will effect a permanent cure. Peruna is surely a wonderful remedy for catarrhal affections.

J. D. Botkin.

If you do not derive prompt and satisfactory results from the use of Peruna, write at once to Dr. Hartman, giving a full statement of your case, and he will be pleased to give you his valuable advice gratis.
