

THE GOOD JUDGE FINDS THE LONELY WOODSMAN

AFTER all your years of chewing—here is the Real Tobacco Chew, "Right-Cut"!

It's a new blend—richer, more sappy and twice as satisfying as the old kind. Seasoned and sweetened just enough to give you all the pure tobacco taste.

Cut a new way—so a small chew gives you comfort without grinding. And it lasts longer.

Take a very small chew—less than one-quarter the old size. It will be more satisfying than a mouthful of ordinary tobacco. Just nibble on it until you find the strength chew that suits you. Tuck it away. Then let it rest. See how easily and evenly the real tobacco taste comes, how it satisfies without grinding, how much less you have to spit, how few chews you take to be tobacco satisfied. That's why it is the Real Tobacco Chew. That's why it costs less in the end.

It is a ready chew, cut fine and short—so that you won't have to grind on it with your teeth. Grinding on ordinary candy-tobacco makes you spit too much.

The taste of pure, rich tobacco does not need to be covered up with molasses and spices. Notice how the salt brings out the rich tobacco taste in "Right-Cut".

One small chew takes the place of two big chews of the old kind.

OLD SOLDIERS PAY DAY'S RESPECTS

Lewis, and from the Ladies of the G. A. R., Mrs. Mary A. Lewis.

Rev. H. C. Ethel made appropriate remarks and there was a recitation by Mrs. Cranmer and a song by Leota McCracken, Grace Thomas and Mabel Duryee.

At noon, dinner was served to 150 veterans and their ladies and friends of the old soldiers, and at 2 o'clock all went to the riverside for the beautiful service of strewing flowers on the water for the unknown sailor dead. Rev. J. T. Moore made the address on this occasion.

The principal program was given at the hall at 3 o'clock, and included the following numbers:

Song, "The Star Spangled Banner."

Prayer, Rev. J. T. Moore.

Vocal Duet, Leota McCracken and Mabel Duryee.

Recitation, Theron Newman.

Song, Mildred Arnold and Vivian Regan.

Reading, "Sheridan's Ride," by Charles Kirk.

Solo, Mrs. Moore.

Song, "The Last Grand Army Man," composed by Comrade Foster, dedicated to Iuka Post and sung by Dorris Lybarger.

Reading in explanation of the work of the Ladies of the G. A. R. by Mrs. Cranmer.

Address by Supt. R. L. Kirk.

Benediction by Rev. J. T. Moore.

Mr. Kirk declared the nation could not pay fully the honors due the G. A. R. for what the men had done for the nation.

"The present duty," he said, "is to so live as to make this a bigger and better country—one so great that it can manage its affairs without recourse to war. This is the present-day patriotism."

He made it clear, however, that he believed, should the occasion arise, that the young men of today would be just as ready to defend the nation on the battle field as were the men of '61.

Why We Oppose Pockets For Women.

1. Because pockets are not a natural right.
2. Because the great majority of women do not want pockets. If they did, they would have them.
3. Because whenever women have had pockets they have not used them.
4. Because women are expected to carry enough things as it is without the additional burden of pockets.
5. Because it would make dissension between husband and wife as to whose pockets were to be filled.
6. Because it would destroy man's chivalry toward women if he did not have to carry all her things in his pockets.
7. Because men are men and women are women. We must not fly in the face of nature.
8. Because pockets have been used by men to carry tobacco, pipes, whisky-flasks, chewing gum, and compromising letters. We see no reason to suppose that women would use them more wisely.—New York Tribune.

WOULD CARE FOR BERRY BY-PRODUCT

Strawberry Waste Tremendous—Suggestions for Handling Surplus

Each year thousands of bushels of strawberries go to waste in the larger producing centers of the United States because of low prices or some adverse condition. In many regions of the South 20 to 25 per cent of the crop is never gathered, because the prices toward the end of the season are too low to justify picking the fruit. This is a great loss that should be avoided. With the increasing demand for strawberry products, such as crushed fruit, jellies, preserves, and marmalades, this loss can be greatly reduced, according to a new publication of the Department of Agriculture (F. B. 664.)

Within the last few years some of the manufacturers of food products have been putting up fresh strawberries in large quantities for use at soda fountains and in the manufacture of ice cream. This industry offers important possibilities to the producer, manufacturer, and consumer. Several large manufacturers buy surplus strawberries and put them up in the field, while others ship the fruit to their home factory. One of the best methods of handling the fruit is as follows: Wash the berries thoroughly in cold water, put them into tight barrels with sugar in about equal weights, load in refrigerator cars, and ship to a cold-storage plant, where they can be held until needed. Sometimes the berries are crushed before being put into the barrels, but in most cases they are packed as nearly whole as possible. When ready for use they are taken from storage and manufactured into the various products. If the fruit is in good condition at the time it is placed in cold storage, it can be kept for a long time without to any great extent losing its flavor and fresh color.

The keeping of strawberries under refrigeration is a comparatively new undertaking, but results that have been secured indicate that in time this can be made an important industry. It is possible to keep the fruit in such a way that its quality is practically unimpaired. In a single storage house 6,000 barrels of crushed sugared strawberries were held at a temperature between 35 degrees and 40 degrees F. Proper storage is an important matter, for it will enable the grower to dispose of his surplus crop and at the same time will provide the consumer with a wholesome strawberry product throughout the year. When growers are banded together into a larger association it often should be possible for them to manufacture strawberry by-products at the producing center under the management of the organization.

The following publications of the department, which may be had upon application, contain information of value to the grower and shipper of strawberries.

F. B. 664. Growing strawberries in the South.

F. B. 198. Strawberries.

F. B. 203. Canned Fruit; Preserves, and Jellies.

The department's specialists in charge of the club work will be glad to furnish additional information on canning and preserving strawberries, especially to groups of women and girls who wish to take up this activity.
