The Cost of Un-prepared-ness

Ask yourself—"What is a lack of training costing me each week?" How much less am I earning than I could as a trained worker?" Look about you—see those who occupy the more responsible positions. Then, answer your question. And that answer will be the cost of unpreparedness.

YOU MUST DECIDE NOW

And now—before you are a day older—you should decide whether you are going to go on—year after year—paying the price—seeing the trained man or woman take the place you should have—

Or—are you going to prepare now to hold a bigger job? Are you going to get the training that makes for success in business.

WHICH CAN YOU AFFORD?

You cannot afford to resign yourself to a career of tedious toil—poor pay—and possible oblivion—when a few months' training will take you out of your small job.

You cannot afford to work always at a meager wage when a small investment of time will prepare you to serve the biggest men in business—where you will be first in line for the better positions higher up.

So make up your mind now that you will prepare to take your place beside the hundreds of other bright young men and young women who have come here.

Make up your mind now to learn

Business will welcome you then.

FIND OUT WHAT WE CAN DO FOR YOU

Come, let us tell you what we have done for others; how we developed their efficiency—their earning capacity; how we have helped them over the small jobs.

Let us prove to you how a few months here will save you a long, expensive apprenticeship; how you can make it worth hundreds—perhaps thousands—of dollars in increased salary and increased opportunities. Why not call today?
