INNES CASE TO COME UP IN U. S. SUPREME COURT

Victor Innes and wife, who were arrested while staying at a house on the McKenzie river east of Eugene more than a year ago, charged with the murder of Eloise Nelms Dennis and Beatrice Nelms, of Atlanta, Ga., are still in jail at San Antonio, Tex. Their case will come up in the U. S. supreme court in the near future. A press dispatch from Atlanta says:

Another celebrated Georgia case will soon take its place on the calendar of the supreme court of the United States. This is the famous Innes-Nelms mystery. Solicitor-General Dorsey will figure in the case, which involves the baffling disappearance more than a year ago of the two sisters, Eloise Nelms Dennis and Beatrice Nelms.

No case, perhaps, in the court annals of Georgia, with the possible exception of the Frank case, has attracted as much attention. The two sisters have disappeared so completely from the face of the earth as if the ground had opened and swallowed them. Whether they were murdered is a question that defectives the country over have never been able to decide.

Victor Innes, formerly of Portland, Ore., with whom one of the sisters had business relations and who appeared to have received large sums of money in handling property transactions, is under charges in connection with the case. Both he and his wife were indicted in Atlanta for larceny after trust. It is charged that Mrs. Dennis, one of the missing sisters, turned over to them practically her entire fortune for investment in western and Mexican lands, which investments never materialized.

Mr. and Mrs. Innes are still in the county jail at San Antonio, Tex., where they have been since their arrest near Eugene, Oregon. No actual proof of the deaths of the girls could be found and murder indictments in Texas were dismissed. The Inneses are now fighting through habeas corpus proceedings to prevent their extradition to Georgia on the charges of larceny. The appeal to the United States supreme court was taken when the Texas courts refused to grant the writs and release them.

Solicitor-General Dorsey will go to Washington to appear before the supreme court. He will ask to have the case advanced on the calendar for an immediate hearing. The outcome will determine whether the Inneses will be brought to Atlanta. It is understood that if the hearing is not advanced it probably will not be reached for another year.

The Nelms sisters, so long missing were the daughters of many years sheriff of this county. He left a considerable fortune, which his widow, his two daughters, and his son inherited. The mother of the missing girls and their brothers are now living in Atlanta.—Register.

RUTH ST. DENIS PRESENTS NEW SPECTACULAR DANCE

Not satisfied with the great success she has made with her original creations of Oriental dances, Ruth St. Denis, the famous dance artiste, spends her between seasons studying out new dance plays for her already extensive repertoire. She not only originates all her dances, but designs all the costuming, directs the staging of the production as well as the light effects, draws the designs for the scenery and selects the musical accompaniment for each new creation.

The latest of her dance plays which she will offer this season is "The Garden of Kama," a beautiful legendary pantomime from the Indian lyrics of Lawrence Hope's poems. The "Garden of Kama" is perhaps the most pretentious of all the dances Miss St. Denis has yet produced, as it not only calls for a very large cast of assisting dancers, including a number of Nautch girls and native Hindoo assistants, but scenically it is of unusual proportions, requiring several complete sets, while the costuming carries out the lavish in its richness of coloring and bejeweled adornment.

Denise Vompany will embrace all the important cities of America and Canada, with a short season in Central America and the Canal Zone. The company is booked for an appearance in Eugene Saturday night, Oct. 16, at the Eugene theatre. Seats on sale Friday morning 10 o'clock.

Job Printing

The law requires that all butter offered for sale shall bear the name and address of the make and weight of the package. Writing these by hand is too slow; get them printed on vegetable parchment with special non-oil ink. 100 for $1; 200 for $1.35; 500 $2.40.

The letter head, envelope and statement are the means by which the business man visits his customers. Neat printing raises the estimate the recipient has of the business house. Let the News Printery work out a catchy letter head design for you.
