BAPTIST CHURCH

Morning sermon—"How thou oughtest to behave thyself in the house of God, which is the church of the living God, the pillar and ground of the truth."

The memories brought out by the text, the doctrines, and dogmas, and religious controversies of three centuries of English history created in my mind a train of thought which the sermon was unable to break.

What is the church of the living God? What is the house of God?

Jacob had a vision at Bethel and he called the place "the house of God." Solomon built a temple on Mount Moriah and it was called the house of the Lord, and countless cathedrals and ministers and chapels have been built and consecrated and called the house of the living God.

It acts as a religious sedative, or opiate, and is conducive to magnificent dreams.

But Baptists and those of like faith look on these things as a kind of idolatry and they say "God that made the world and all things therein, seeing that he is Lord of heaven and earth dwelleth not in temples made with hands."

The house of God; the church of the living God; the pillar and ground of truth, is not brick and stone, timber and mortar but it is the organized company of believers. Ye are the temple of God. He hath given Him to be the head over all things to the church which is his body the fullness of Him.

The church, the body of Christ on earth, in whom the spirit dwells and through whom it works makes a holy place for the time being of the locality in which it is worshipping, whether it be a barn or a cathedral or a cave in the earth.

Since the building in which a church meets is not the "House of God" why should it not be used as a social center, for theatricals and games, political discussions and dances?

The "place" not being holy is not "desecrated" by them. Those who argue this way overlook the principal law of memory, the law of associated ideas.

The building being intended as the place where the congregation shall meet to worship and pay their adoration to deity, any recollection or memory of something foreign to worship which is connected with it, some buffoonery that has been practised in it, diverts the mind and breaks the feeling of worship.

In my infancy my grandfather used to give me peppermint lozenges to keep me quiet during the sermon and for almost 50 years the taste and smell of peppermint give me the same feeling that I have when the audience is hushed as the minister spreads his hands and says let us pray.

When we are with a body of people who have come together for a particular purpose especially when that purpose is worship a proper respect for the opinions of mankind and a due regard for the rights of others should prompt us to respectful behavior, and a due regard for our own spiritual welfare will cause us to refrain from livid and frivolity in connection with sacred subjects. A parody of a religious theme is dangerously near the unpardonable sin. It withers religion at its source.

are expected all to be in place by the end of the week. The big crane is on its way, and will be here shortly.

Rev. and Mrs. M. F. Childs go to Cottage Grove the latter part of the week to assist in the revival meetings being conducted in the Free Methodist church there. Mrs. M. J. Blair will speak at the West Springfield church next Sunday evening.

One of the particularly interesting window displays on orange day, Saturday, was that in the window of the Knox grocery, where the golden fruit was piled in a large number of Indian baskets from the collection of Mrs. Knox.

Escaping air from the automatic sprinkling device at the Booth-Kelly mill caused the fire alarm to sound for several minutes until the watchman could investigate and shut off the water.

For Growing Children

there is no better food than

Grape-Nuts

with cream or good milk.

Many diseases of childhood and youth are due to faulty diet—a diet that restricts the amount of needed mineral salts, the lack of which, as your family physician can tell you, often leads to rickets and other diseases of mal-nutrition.

Grape-Nuts, made of whole wheat and malted barley is rich in these vital mineral elements so necessary to health.

This food tastes good, is easily digested, and many letters from parents, after trial, testify
