deterioration proceeds rapidly, Many an overfed dyspeptic, suddenly dragged by the stern hand of circumstances from a life of physical ease and plenty and physical ease and plenty and forced to work out of doors suddenly discovers that his semi invalidism has gone, that a chrn nic skin derangement of many years standing has disappeared and that a new vigor and ze of life has been given him. Not everyone can spend his whole time in the open air but a certain amount of exercise and plain wholesome food in an amount not exceeding the body's needs can be had by almost everyone. Simple moderate diet and exercise make for health. These are not faddish food theories: they are just plain common sense.

In practically every case, however, the result is little or noth ing more than the very different thing of training for athletic sports and contests, and the greater part of this has a fatal tendency to concentrate on the beir muscular development beast, ing already such that they ble to shine on field they are and so add to the repute of their respective seats of learning. The large majority of the students get most of their "exercise" while shouting from exandstand nd bleachers, and, though that probably better than none, it can hardly be called a well-balanced or highly profitable forin of bodily exertion.
These being the conditions as they exist, it is no wonder bat the New York Medical Journal notes with satisfaction, as marking at least a start in a better direction, the establishment In one of our universities of a training," as distinguished from nominal or even real physical raining. "Muscular exercise" he Journal says, "is but one of the many essentials for health preservation. For the latter very different instruction is need ed, in its opinion, than $s$ or can e given by the athletes and acobats customarily found at the head of the so-called physical training departments in schools and colleges.
There may be significance in the fact that The Journal credits the colleges for women with better teaching in physiology and hygiene than is to be obtain that one wormen's, and it says an elective course in physiology that surpasses those of mary medical schools.
The gravest criticism that can as conducted in most maining ties is that it constitutes the worst sort of preparation for the sedentary lives upon which most of the students enter on graduation. Big hearts and bie muscles are fine things with when the demand on their capacities suddenly ceases, or is much diminished, they are subject to a very dangerous form tion between athletics and healt is by no means invariable or necessary.
