COSTLINESS BRINGS APPRECIATION

It required the present scarcity and consequent high price of paper to make us realize the number and importance of the uses which this material has come to serve in modern life. There is indeed, literally no end to them, and, while none of them can be called vital, the enforced abandonment of almost any one would produce a distinct sense of hardship, and not a few have come to be essential to the comfortable conduct of life.

Yet the great majority of our not very remote ancestors managed to get along with small quantities of paper, or even none at all, and its employment for many of the purposes for which we use it they would have considered a wild extravagance—as, indeed, it would have been for them.

When paper was invented, by whom or where, nobody knows. Its manufacture is one of the oldest of the arts, but only within the last century or two did it take the form and texture familiar to us. The general impression that paper was cheap was never quite true, except for those who used it in small quantities, and really good paper always will be, expensive. The sense of cheapness came, probably, from the fact that in only comparatively few cases is paper thought of otherwise than as a bearer or a container of something much more desirable. It is usually incidental or "thrown in."

Now that even the lower grades have become costly, paper is coming to be viewed in a new light—as it were for itself, and with a new appreciation of its many good qualities. It may not be quite a necessity of life, but there is nothing to take its place for far more than a thousand and one purposes.

PENSIONS AND PENSIONERS

A pension, like an annuity, is an encouragement to longevity. The report of Secretary of the Interior Lane shows that, while no soldiers of the war of 1812 are left, the names of 115 widows of soldiers in that war are still on the pension rolls. Presumably these were young women who married ancient men, but all must be stricken in years by this time. Of the Mexican war, over nearly seventy years of age, there are 513 living soldier pensioners, and 3,785 widows. On June 30, 1916, there were 362,277 pensioned soldiers of the civil war, a decrease of 34,000 in a year. On the same date the number of widows of civil war soldiers was 287,753, a decrease of 3,354. This is the second year of decrease. Till 1915 there had always been an increase.

The greatest number of civil war soldiers on the pension list 745,822, was in 1898. More than half have gone since then. The greatest number of widows 304,373, was in 1912. There were 709,572 pensioners on June 30, 1916, 38,575 less than on June 30, 1915. The amount paid for pensions was $159,155,090, some $6,000,000 less than in the preceding year.

From July 1, 1790, to July 1, 1916, the Government has paid for pensions $5,054,630,727. The share of pensions in war expense is indicated by the fact that from 1789 up to and including 1915 the war bill if the Government was $7,657,322,205, the naval bill $3,233,862,654.

Insomnia.
Indigestion nearly always disturbs the sleep more or less, and is often the cause of insomnia. Eat a light supper with little if any meat, and no milk; also take one of Chamberlain's Tablets immediately after supper, and see if you do not rest much better. Obtainable everywhere.

CHOICE PICTURES COMING

Management of Bell Theatre Will Give Springfield the Best.

Believing that the people of Springfield are entitled to and will appreciate having as good pictures at home as they could find elsewhere the management of the Bell theatre has lined up a very high and expensive class of pictures. In their list, the pictures from Triangle, Kleine, Edison, Selig, and Essanay, Metro and World are included.

This high class of photo plays is costing the Bell theatre from six to eight times as much as the cheaper plays. The management also has several very high class special pictures booked, such as "The Spoilers" de luxe edition of 12 reels; some Mary Pickford pictures, Douglas Fairbanks and Clara Kimball Young.

This class of service is taken by the Bell theatre as a trial which will be continued if encouraged by the people here.

Why Constipation Injures.

The bowels are the natural sewerage system of the body. When they become obstructed by constipation a part of the poisonous matter which they should carry off is absorbed into the system, making you feel dull and stupid, and interfering with the digestion and assimilating of food. This condition is quickly relieved by Chamberlain's Tablets. Obtainable every where.
