LUMBER INDUSTRY ASLEEP.

Forester Says Substitute Materials Are Injuring the Business.

Kansas City, Mo.—W. B. Greeley, an assistant government forester, spoke of the lumber business as "an industry asleep" in a talk he made to the Southwestern Lumbermen's association at the Hotel Muehlebach. He said the trade had permitted other building materials to be substituted for wood without making any effort to find new uses for its products, according to the Kansas City Star.

"All social movements," he said, "affect the lumber business one way or another. The safety first movement has caused a demand for steel cars, fire-proof buildings and a revision of the building codes in almost all cities to the detriment of the lumber business. "The industry in a sense has been asleep. Substitute materials for lumber have been popularized by the manufacturers. Cement and steel have displaced wood, and the manufacturers of those articles have been delving constantly to find new uses for them. The lumber industry has made no effort to keep itself in the field by finding new uses for its products."

"S" ON FISH BACKS.

Dealer Reports a New Species Caught Off the California Coast.

Los Angeles, Cal.—Chas. Oliver, who markets the fish caught by the Japanese and Russian fishermen of the fishing village north of Santa Monica, claims that for this almost fishless season there has been a fair catch of halibut and sole. He said further: "The strange part of this catch is that every one of the fish had a perfectly marked 'S' on its back. I have handled hundreds of tons of these fish, before and have never seen one that was marked in this way. Maybe it is some new species, but if so it is just like the others that have been caught around the bay, only the 'S' has been added."

NINETY-ONE YEARS YOUNG.

Ohio Irishman Challenges Any Nonagenarian to Compete With Him.

Cleveland, O.—Uncle John Flannagan ninety-one, of DeLancey, O., arose at 5, tended to two teams of horses, did all the other chores around the house, did a day's work on the streets, went home, had supper, then walked down town to a meeting of the Elks and felt so good he issued a challenge for an endurance contest to all the other young men of advanced age in Ohio. Flannagan is proud of his vigor and confident of his physical strength, and in issuing his challenge he will place himself under a year's handicap in age and permit any ninety-year-old in Ohio to compete with him.

MEN WITH TRADES JOIN ARMY.

Great Rush to Enlist Under Modified Terms of Service.

New York.—Men with trades are being eagerly sought as army recruits, and now, for the first time, a flood of applications is beginning to pour in to the recruiting stations in New York. The prospect of future war is entirely responsible for this, although the action of the war department recently ordering the enlistment of men between eighteen and thirty-five for a period of one year only on active service and six years with the reserve has made the service more attractive.

Since the issuance of this order the recruiting station at 614 Eighth avenue has had an unprecedented number of applications. The trades most in demand are clerks, stenographers, automobile drivers, automobile machinists, blacksmiths, cooks, bakers, teamsters, wheelwrights, carpenters, firemen, farmers, engineers and saddlers.

PUT ELEPHANTS TO WORK.

Germans Using Big Beasts For Hauling in Berlin Streets.

Berlin.—Of the extraordinary sights seen in the snow blocked streets of Berlin the employment of huge working elephants for traffic purposes is certainly the strangest. The animals belong to a circus, and every morning they may be seen on the way drawing heavy carts loaded with iron boilers, each weighing 35,000 pounds. No eight horses would be sufficient to move these huge wagons, but to the gigantic pachyderms it seems as child's play. If they find an auto bus stuck in a snowdrift, with panting, exhausted horses trying to pull it out, the working elephant heads a friendly forelead, and in a trice the stranded vehicle is afloat again.
