HOW CAPITAL SIZED UP ARTHUR JAMES BALFOUR

Wears Frock Coat and Striped Trousers—Movements Suggest An "Outdoor Man."

Washington has sized up Arthur James Balfour in this way: Five feet ten and three-quarter inches in height.

Weight 155 pounds or thereabout. Of slender figure, with narrow shoulders that stoop slightly, but very long, sinewy arms—a figure unusually athletic for a man of sixty-nine years.

The Balfour head is long and narrow, with an overhanging brow, "bulging" type. It is covered with gray hair, at the temples trained down to a thin skin of whiskers that extend an inch along the cheek.

The Balfour face is "sharp," though the mild gray blue eyes detract somewhat from the general impression gained when the Balfour countenance is in repose. The nose is aquiline, almost hawklike, with prominent bridge.

The Balfour eyes are rather prominent, ordinarily steady and penetrating save when the Balfour smile comes into them to radiate over the entire face. This smile is infectious—"winning"; it might almost be called.

When the Balfour smile is working—which is most of the time—there is little in the expression to suggest the "bloody Balfour" of Fenian days when the then secretary of foreign affairs for Ireland was compelled, with firm hand, to stay frequent disorders.

The Balfour voice is that of the orator and linguist. It possesses all the charm of the well cultivated English vocal vehicle. It is soft, modulated, almost to a whisper at times, though it is decidedly resonant when roused in public speaking.

The chief use Mr. Balfour makes of his brilliant power of speech is to keep it out of action most of the time. He is an eloquent listener, his smile taking the place of speech.

While engaged in official missions, such as that which brings him to the United States, the British secretary for foreign affairs garbs himself much as he does when he goes to parliament.

The chief features of it are a long frock coat that flaps around his knees, gray striped trousers, comfortably square toed shoes, a black string tie, and a narrow brimmed silk hat that appears to sit uncomfortably on his head.

The Balfour walk and movement suggest "the outdoor man." His stride is long and swinging, and he moves along at a very rapid gait.

The Balfour diversions—he is a bachelor—are bicycling, golf and almost boyish fondness for dime novels of the "shilling shocker" sort and profound works on philosophy. He can recite pages of Socrates in the original. He speaks French, German, Spanish, Italian and can make himself understood in the original Gaelic.

That the distinguished statesman has a sense of humor is indicated by the tribute of one of his associates, who is authority for the statement that "Balfour can make a really good pun, with an American punch, as you call it."
