FARMERS WILL BENEFIT

Under the new Food Administration regulations governing the price of mill feeds, substantial encouragement is offered to the farmer and the stock raiser, and the Administration now hopes for their full cooperation in a capacity production during the coming year, of hogs, cattle, sheep and poultry.

The above is the statement of Assistant Federal Food Administrator W. K. Newell, who points out that the way is now clear for the farmer and the stock raiser to plan for the greatest possible output of food animals.

There is every assurance of a steady and profitable market, said Mr. Newell, "with as ample every citizen so situated that he a supply of feed as can be had by milling all the wheat possible in the Northwest. The raising of food animals, particularly hogs, and beef and dairy cattle, is not only the patriotic duty of can do so, but it will be a splendid business investment as well. For several years to come, because of world-conditions, the market for food animals will inevitably be stronger and steady, and now that the output of grain feeds at the mill has come under Government control through the new licensing system, with a fixed price basis, the cost of production will no longer be prohibitively high or too uncertain for a safe investment. Let every farmer and stock raiser in Oregon make his plans now for the fullest possible production of all food animals, particularly hogs, which are most needed and which will prove the most profitable to the producer.

Under the new regulations the miller must not charge the dealer more than 38% of the cost of a ton of wheat at the mill door for bran. All feed dealers must now operate under a federal license and must not charge more than a reasonable profit for the handling of any mill feeds. Any cases of over charge by dealers should be promptly reported to the Federal Food Administration office at Portland for investigation."

The new prices of mill feeds, from miller to dealer, will be $29.00 or $30.00 per ton for bran $2.00 higher for shorts, and $9.00 higher for middlings in carload lots, with a differential of not more than 50c for less than carload lots. This is a substantial reduction as against the price charged for mill feeds heretofore. With this cut in the cost of feeding stock and the assurance of permanent Government control of the mill feed output, risk is reduced to the minimum for the stock raiser, who is now urged to do his utmost to help the Food Administration meet the tremendous demands of our own armies and that of the peoples and armies of our associates in this war.

Popular Farce Coming Jan 1

"Fair and Warmer" Will Be Shown at Eugene Theatre

A year in New York—eight months in Chicago. Could any further recommendation be needed for "Fair and Warmer," the riotous farce by Avery Hopwood, which Selwyn and company will present at the Eugene theatre, Tuesday, January 1.

Should there be anyone who would ask for more, they are respectfully referred to whatsoever corner of these United States they may particularly prefer as an authority for what they shall see and what they shall not see in the theatre. And the answer will be the same, whether it comes from Portland, Ore., or Jacksonville, Fla. "Fair and Warmer" is the best farce that was ever seen in this city."

The engagement of "Fair and Warmer" here is a distinct credit to the local management in its efforts to bring the best of the theatrical output to the city. It is due, too, to the insistent demands that have been made upon Selwyn and company for more than a year to make it possible for theatre patrons in the country who have not thus far had an opportunity of seeing the farce, to do so. It is no exaggeration to say that there was never a performance of "Fair and Warmer" given in either New York or Chicago at which there was not at least one patron from an outside city who did not make personal request of the management that at some time in the future "they would be sure to send it to their city."

DON'T FRET ABOUT TRIFLES

Magnifying Petty Mistakes and Troubles Weakens One's Ability to Master Bigger Problems.

Some of us rather overdriven women get into a habit of magnifying the petty mistakes or troubles of disagreeable events of the day, the business day, and making them out very big and terrible. The result is a loss of energy, for magnified troubles bring worry and anxiety, which is a sort of poison to the mind and even to the body, writes Jessie Roberts in the Houston Post.

Don't hang on to the mistakes of yesterday. Today's will be easier to manage if you haven't that drag on you, and by a little more firmness you can soon get to the point when the annoyance of the moment gets itself settled in that moment and then is dropped.

We would think it a fool thing to feed our body poison, even in the minutest particles; but we feed our nerves poison, even though it be in small quantities, when we deliberately fret and worry over small things, making them huge and important by the mere turning of them over and over.

These are strenuous days. Don't weaken your strength by unnecessary and harmful fussing over trifles. After you have done whatever can be done to remedy what has gone wrong, turn your mind away from it. Refuse to be dominated by small mistakes. Few or as, by the way, are terrified by a really big thing. We renege up and meet it definitely and bravely, unless we have a yellow streak. But the small thing often breaks down our nerves—and then our nerve.

TORPEDOS ON FOUR WHEELS

Explosive Propelled Toward Enemy Trenches and Controlled by Means of Wires Attached to Works.

La Domenica Del Corriere, Italy, reports a new war device, the invention of an English engineer, Stratford Talbot. Literally, it is a torpedo on wheels which may be propelled toward the enemy trenches and controlled from the starting point by means of attached wires.

The explosive is mounted on a metallic box which rides on four wheels. Attached to the box is a contrivance consisting of a dynamo which propels the wheels. The entire machine is electrically controlled, permitting the explosion of the charge at the desired moment.

Two parallel wires connect the torpedo with the control station. These are carried on spools and unwind as the machine advances. The power is derived from accumulating batteries at the starting point. When it is desired to fire the charge all that is required is to push a button. According to the inventor the total cost of this contrivance is about $150.

What He Wants for "Plain Food."

Do you know this man, have you ever heard of him—the man who likes plain food? His tastes are of the simplest; a little clear soup yourself, clear consommé the color of pale sherry; take a knuckle of veal and four pounds of lean beef—these are the sympathetic recipe. (Notice, you "take," you don't "buy.") Fry, to a tender brown, carrots, onions, etc. So goes on this tender, delectable process until you finally "clarify." The time the cook spends upon the steaming, the frying, the clarifying, and the straining is not of course taken into account. "The man who likes plain food enjoys roasts of meat, joints and rib-roasts."—Exchange.

Chemistry Recognized Science.

Chemistry has been accorded an almost formal recognition as the science at the heart of modern warfare. The British ministry of reconstruction has pointed out that Germany selected the chemical industry for special nurture in making its war preparations, especially that part of the industry dealing with coal tar derivatives, in which field the imperial government gradually won a temporary world monopoly. The minister of reconstruction has appointed a committee of six chemists to investigate the situation in England and to recommend a plan for making the British chemical industry self-sustaining and equal to any call upon it during and after the war.

Von Hindenburg a "Junker."

"Junker" is philologically akin to "Jonkheer" and has a quasi-equivalent in the English "Squire." The Junker is a man of some birth and of inherited property, especially land, says an exchange. The word is used to describe that large class of Prussians who come of noble, semimobile or at least old and "good" families and whose worldly possessions are such as to give them an appreciable stake in the government. Von Hindenburg is a fine example of the Junker; Ludendorff, his collaborator, is not a Junker by birth, however much a one he may be by taste.

Capital Punishment.

Capital punishment prevails in all the states of the Union except Kansas, Maine, Minnesota, Rhode Island, Washington and Wisconsin. In Michigan the only crime punishable by death is treason. The death penalty was abolished in the state of Washington in 1913, in Iowa in 1872 and restored in 1878, in Colorado in 1897 and restored in 1901. Hanging is the ordinary mode of execution, but in Indiana, New York, Nebraska, Ohio, Pennsylvania, Arkansas, Vermont and Virginia electrocution is the legal method. In Nevada hanging or shooting is optional with the condemned person.
