SAVE THE HENS

In order that a maximum egg supply may be added to the Nation's food resources and to insure an increased stock of poultry on the American farm, the United States Food Administration has declared a "closed season" for hens and pullets until April 31st.

Until after that date all licensed dealers, which includes all wholesale, commission and cold-storage men, are forbidden to purchase, ship, sell or negotiate the sale of any live or freshly killed hens or pullets. This regulation became effective February 11th, and the licensed dealers were given until February 23rd to dispose of such poultry stocks on hand or enroute from shipping points.

Assistant Federal Food Administrator W. K. Newell, who announced the new regulation said however, that it does not in any way apply to the farmer or poultryman, who may will their hens sell them in the stalls of the public market or through any unlicensed dealer.

"Through this arrangement" and pullets at discretion and said Mr. Newell, "the wholesale slaughter of hens and pullets through the laying and brooding season is prevented, yet a channel is left open for the disposal by the farmer or poultryman, of the unprofitable and inferior fowls." The desire of the Food Administration is that every farm should maintain its maximum capacity of poultry this year, and if this is done a tremendous and very valuable addition will be made to the food resources of the nation. Between now and May 1 the cold storage supply will be augmented considerably by the scattering offerings in the market direct from the farmers and poultrymen. The new regulation is the result of careful thought and it is a necessary provision to safeguard a continued supply of an important national food commodity. It should have the cordial support and co-operation of everyone. The benefits of the regulation should be plain to all, as it is perfectly evident that under it we will have, on May 1st, all the chickens now on hand, plus the eggs these hens and pullets will have laid, and a future supply of food fowls in the chicks that will have been hatched.

IS SHIP BUILDING BEING BOASTED BY OUR DELEGATION

ing Oregon's shipyards and insisting that they be given more work? The Washington delegation kept the trail hot, and that's why they got results; but there is manifestly a difference between the Washington delegation and the Oregon delegation. After all, it's the ability of a Congressional delegation to grasp what its state needs and get those needs properly before the right authorities that counts. In the right ship building program the Oregon delegation has fallen down; in fact it never functioned.

The recent rate decision of the Interstate Commerce Commission, giving 15 per cent increase to the transcontinental railroads, makes the building of a large Pacific coast merchant fleet more imperative both from a civil and a war standpoint. The more ships that can be launched from the Pacific coast yards the greater the tonnage via Panama canal, and the cheaper the deliveries of essential commodities at Pacific Coast points and also of our commodities at Atlantic coast points. There is every need for ship building contracts in Oregon, and it is time the Oregon delegation woke up or came home.

HIGH SCHOOL NOTES BY DORRIS SIKES

According to David Bidwell and a number of other worthy dignitaries at the High School, the "raffle" box for choosing partners for the big "get acquainted" meeting was the most nerve racking and exciting event of their High School career. At one o'clock Superintendent R. L. Kirk called the assembly to order and with the aid of Miss Ida Dinsdale settled the fate of every person in S. H. S. for that one evening. The name of every girl in school had been written on slips of paper and as Mr. Kirk called off the names, the boys selected a slip from the box, unfolded it and the result was announced to the rest of the school. But woe alas! there were 60 girls for 40 boys. But Mr. Kirk came valiantly forward with a plan and every third boy was allowed to choose two. The Freshmen were exceedingly game and though we always suspected them of being rather timid they faced the guns almost as well as the experienced Seniors. Of course Stanley was a trifle short and Maude a "trifle" taller than he but they did make an awfully nice looking couple and even Bill didn't have a chance to get jealous. Ernest Korn, Tom Reynolds, Harry Fandrem, and a few other worthies were not satisfied with only being allowed to take one and begged that they might have more. Of course "Sunbeam" Davidson's, and Frank Shontz's cars were handy and they were given a chance to make use of them. In all, even though some didn't get the fair damsel whom they had already asked to escort of whom they wished to take things went off very well and no one got mad.

The eighth meeting of the Nekahian Literary Society was held Friday afternoon at 3 o'clock, with Mary Harding acting chairman. The minutes of the last meeting were read by the secretary, Audrey Perkins, and approved as read. There being no further business to come before the meeting the program was rendered. Following is the program:
Piano Solo, Maude Gorrie.
Pianologue, "Little Boy Blue," Bernice Cagley, accompanied by Miss Lindsey on the piano.
Reading, Story, Laurel Griffin.
Original Story, "The Greatest of Things is This," Wanna McKinnon.
School Song, "Ina," Allie Critcham, Miss Lindsey.
Vernon "Shorty" Meats visited at S. H. S. Friday afternoon. He was a member of the football squad this year but quit school a short time ago.

Robert Mann, who registered as a Junior at the opening of the Second semester, was absent Thursday and Friday.
Lynn Grandy and Hazel Dean were among the absentees Friday.

The Botany class performed an experiment proving osmosis during their class period Wednesday afternoon. A hole was bored in a carrot and that was filled with molasses. In the hole was placed a cork through which a capillary tube was drawn and the whole thing was placed in a vessel of cold water. The experiment was set aside for a time and the molasses allowed to rise in the tube, increasing proving that the carrot absorbs water.

Superintendent R. L. Kirk has arranged for the High school military company to have target practice on nights when the weather will not permit out door drilling. Four galleries will be set up in the room formerly occupied by the Racket Store between Third and Fourth streets on Main. Twenty-two caliber rifles will be used by the boys in practicing.

When You Have a Cold
It is when you have a severe cold that you appreciate the good qualities of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. Mrs. Frank Crocker, Pana, Ill., writes "Our five-year-old son Paul caught a severe cold last winter that settled on his lungs and he had terrible coughing spells. We were greatly worried about him as the medicine we gave him did not help him in the least. A neighbor spoke so highly of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy that I got a bottle of it. The first dose benefited him so much that I continued giving it to him until he was cured."
