MECCA OF HUNTERS WILL OPEN SOON

Season in Lane County Opens August 15 and Closes October 31.

Although many of the leading sportsmen and best hunters in the county are in the service, it is believed by those in a position to know that there will be more nimrod's shouldering guns this fall than for a number of years past.

Shortage and high price of meat are deemed certain to spur the hunters to take advantage of the open season, especially in the case of deer and pheasant seasons, to provision their larders.

Another reason for this belief is because of the plentitude of both deer and pheasants in the state at present, due to the exceedingly mild winter and open spring.

There has always been a certain amount of illegal poaching in the mountains by deer hunters. Some of these law-breakers have been apprehended, but it is known to the state game warden and his deputies that this has been going on, greatly reducing the supply of available game.

This year a great many of the men who committed these depredations are in some branch of the service. In fact, the mountains are comparatively free from men, giving the deer a chance to thrive unmolested.

The local deer season, as far as district No. 1 is concerned, opens on August 15, two weeks from next Thursday, and closes October 15. In district No. 2, which includes the counties in Eastern Oregon, the season starts September 1 and closes October 31.

Last year, on account of the extreme drought, it was believed that the season would not open, or be cut short, on account of the danger of hunters starting additional forest fires.

It has been drier this year than ever, for a long period of time, but the rains of the last week will make it entirely unnecessary to anticipate any danger from this source.

According to State Game Warden Carl D. Shoemaker, the outlook for the pheasant season is also encouraging. The extremely mild winter and continued warmth have been ideal conditions for the young pheasants, who have increased wonderfully in numbers, from all reports.

The pheasant season opens October 1 and closes October 31. There is no danger of this being closed for any reason apparent at present, according to Mr. Shoemaker.

A hunting license remaining at the same price as that charged last year, $1.50, and a combination license for residents of the state, which includes both hunting and fishing privileges, can be procured for $3.

The state game warden still has 16 deputy, or district wardens, who are under him on salary, who will look after any law infractions. In addition, there are a great number of volunteer sportsmen who are signed to watch for law-violators during the open season. These men were of great assistance to the state officials last season.
