REVIEW OF LUMBER CONDITIONS

Lumber labor's newly increased wage scale and the Pacific Northwest community welfare, are in possible jeopardy through the increasing tendency of Canadian mill and American wholesale interests to put eastbound lumber shipments in transit unsold.

These shipments arrive to diverting points in the East without a purchaser, and are sacrificed to avoid accumulating demurrage. The sacrifice price conveys, to certain buyers, the impression of a breaking market and buying movements are not inspired by falling values.

Maintenance of new wage scale in lumber industry is wholly contingent upon market stability, now threatened by unsold transit cars. Many of these cars are dumpings from Canadian mills operating on nine-hour day and at a lower wage scale than is current in mills of Washington and Oregon.

The West Coast Lumbermen's Association eastern reinspection service advises that transit shipments are causing considerable trouble and dissatisfaction with Coast producers generally, in markets acquired by Coast manufacturers. This is due to the fact that such shipments frequently contain lumber unsuitable for the purchasers' purposes, both as to the mixture of car contents, and as to the quality and grade. In this regard transit shipments are regarded as detrimental to successful market extension, so essential if there is to be a continuity of betterment of West Coast labor conditions; and of Pacific Northwest community and industrial prosperity.

At the present time there is possibly not to exceed twelve hundred cars of lumber in transit unsold. However, the percentage of these cars arriving at diverting points without sale, and going to demurrage, is increasing, due to the unsatisfactory experiences of the retail trade with Coast transit stock.

WHAT CANNING MEANS TO COAST STATES

The canning industry has made the farmers virtually independent of the retail trade in disposing of their product.

It has caused the rapid development of thousands of acres of land which would otherwise have remained uncultivated.

This industry is now employing tens of thousands of people on the Pacific coast in the packing of fish, fruits, vegetables, milk and meat.

Of particular interest to coast states in any movement which will increase salmon production and canning as this is one of our products which has a world wide market.

The lumber industry is also deeply interested in the growth of the canning industry on account of the thousands of additional boxes used while many printers at this season keep their presses running day and night printing labels, pickers checks, etc.

NATIONAL DEBT AS AN ASSET

Our 25 billions national debt are looked upon by many clear thinkers as an additional asset of capital.

For instance if a business man has $25,000 in property he hesitates to mortgage it to start a business or an industry.

But if he has $2500 or $25,000 in national war bonds he can use them as a basis of capital almost as readily as so much cash.

Considered as a whole, the war debt will be found to stimulate industries as soon as we can escape the enormous war taxes.

The debt in the form of liberty and victory loan bonds is an expansion of capital or credit on a large scale.

But it will not move freely into industrial development until such ventures are assured of a chance to earn more than the traditional four to six per cent.

In these days of high cost of labor and high cost of living it is surprising to read of wages in other parts of the world that are little more than one-twentieth the average in the United States. In the Madras Presidency, British India, blacksmiths get 23 cents a day; fitters, 29 cents; carpenters, 22 cents; bricklayers, 21 cents; masons, 20 cents; weavers, 18 cents; spinners, 15 cents; engine drivers, 33 cents; firemen, 15 cents; messengers, 8 cents; coolies, 11 cents. Yet labor troubles are practically unknown. In the entire presidency there were but two strikes in 1918, and both were of short duration. One of the strikes was in a textile factory and the other was in an engineering works. Both were for higher wages. The former was settled by compromise and the latter collapsed after a few days, the workmen resuming work unconditionally.—Chicago Manufacturers' News.

The fire at Brownsville last week makes us wonder what we would do in case one really got started here. Sometimes it pays to be careful. This is the time when fire can do a lot of damage in a short time. Hadn't you better clean up that patch of garbage and trash in the back yard and save yourself as well as others?

Mrs. Burns' Letter

Here is a letter that is certain to prove of interest to people in this vicinity, as cases of this sort occur in almost every neighborhood, and people should know what to do in like circumstances.

SAVANNAH, MO., Oct. 13, 1916.

"I used a bottle of Chamberlain's Colic and Diarrhoea Remedy about nine years ago and it cured me of flux (dysentery). I had another attack of the same complaint some three or four years ago and a few doses of this remedy cured me. I have recommended Chamberlain's Colic and Diarrhoea Remedy to dozens of people since I first used it."
