

We Vouch for Them

Of all the tires that are made, —why do you suppose we prefer to sell United States Tires?

Because they are made by the biggest rubber company in the world. And they know how to build good tires.

They have choice of materials.—they have immense facilities,—they employ many exclusive methods.

They can go to greater lengths in testing, improving and perfecting the things that make good tires.

We find it good business to sell United States Tires.

And—you will find it good business to buy them. They are here—a tire for every need.

United States Tires are Good Tires

We know United States Tires are GOOD Tires. That's why we sell them. SANDGATHE & ADRIAN, Springfield, Garage.

JAPAN'S PEACEFUL PENETRATION OF THE PACIFIC COAST STATES

ing a principle under which she might force her excess population into the United States, Canada, Australia and elsewhere on the same terms as might be accorded other Nationals. That demand was made in charming disregard of her own stand against the Chinese and Koreans, but Japan has learned that it is not necessary for her to be consistent in her dealings with America. She has thus far been conceded what she demanded, regard less of its absurdity or impropriety.

Conditions Under Existing Laws

Before consideration is given to the changes which will be made by the operation of the proposed legislation, it is worth while to examine conditions as maintained under existing laws and regulations, and consider the inevitable results therefrom if the present policy is continued. Afterwards it will be shown how this condition will be made worse and the end hastened by the so-called "constructive immigration" legislation.

Hawaii and California afford at present the most illuminating example of what Japan seeks for her people under the Stars and Stripes, and what will be left for the white American if she succeeds. Remember, too, that the conditions to which attention will be called, have been and are being brought about under a so-called "Gentlemen's Agreement," the theory of which, as carefully explained to the Pacific Coast at the time, was that Japan was to restrict under her own regulations Japanese immigration to this country as effectually as Chinese immigration was restricted by our prohibitive laws.

The Lesson of Hawaii

We commence with Hawaii, and in this matter we shall make Dr. Gulick our principal witness. In March, 1915, he made certain investigations in the Hawaiian Islands, the results of which are embodied in the pamphlet herein before quoted, "Hawaii's American-Japanese Problem," published in Honolulu by the Star-Bulletin. Unless otherwise stated, quotations credited to Dr. Gulick are from that publication.

Therein (page 8) Dr. Gulick states that for the preceding seven years (1908-1915) under the "Gentlemen's Agreement" no fresh labor immigrants had come from Japan. In 1910, he says, out of a total population in the islands of 191,909, the Japanese numbered 79,647, of which 24,891 were females. In 1914 the total population was 213,000, of whom 89,715 were Japanese, 24,550 Hawaiian, 24,631 Chinese, 14,992 Filipinos, and 14,518 all other races. In that year the Japanese school enrollment in the territorial schools was 36 per cent of the total.

In 1918 (according to a statement of the Superintendent of Schools of Hawaii—S. F. Examiner, May 18, 1919), the Japanese population had increased to 103,000, "nearly one-half the total population," while Japanese school children comprised 40 per cent of the entire enrollment, and of the increase in school children in 1917 and 1918, more than one-half was Japanese.

The 1918 report of Secretary of the Interior Franklin K. Lane places the Japanese population of Hawaii in 1917 at 106,000, while the United States Bureau of Commerce estimates the total population at 219,000.

The American Year Book for 1917 says, as of June 30th of that year: "The estimated population (Hawaii) was 250,627. The Japanese contributed more than half the increase."

Japanese newspapers in Honolulu today have a large circulation, and one prints an English section.

In 1915 in Honolulu out of a total of 107 prostitutes, eighty-two were Japanese (Gulick). In 1914 the official register of Hawaii shows that out of 3,149 marriages, 1,806 were Japanese. In 1915 a large majority of the Japanese men—perhaps two-thirds—were married, women having been permitted to come from Japan to marry them (Gulick). The proportion has doubtless been increased since.
