CHILDREN'S TEETH

"Oh, I had no idea that was a permanent tooth!"

I have heard this expression so frequently that I feel it is my duty to the public to say a few words.

Mothers, you are directly responsible for the health and happiness of your children in many ways, but more so than in any in regard to their teeth. "I am so busy that I do not have time" Isn't this a most ridiculous statement? Would you sacrifice your child's welfare on such a flimsy excuse?

Between the fifth and seventh year, usually about six, there are four large teeth erupt. These are the FIRST PERMANENT MOLARS, commonly spoken of as double teeth. They are the most posterior teeth, found just behind the second deciduous molar, or second double baby teeth. Those are the teeth to which it is necessary to give the most careful attention. The two lower teeth decay very readily, due to being partially covered by the gums, which gives rise to the expression "Decayed when they come through." This, of course, is not a fact, but is due to the loose gum tissue harboring food over the teeth. The upper teeth are much less liable to decay, due to the fact that they are more self-cleansing than the lower teeth.

Mothers, here is the vital point. Any tooth without a nerve, and most emphatically a molar or double tooth, is a liability to the health. This is due to the fact that with the utmost care and skill a dentist CANNOT tell if his work is perfect in the hidden roots of a tooth. No, the x-ray is not a proof of the perfection which is necessary in successful root canal treatment. So I say to you now, avoid all unnecessary trouble which has so simple a remedy and may be accomplished in such little time for the everlasting good of your child.

Any child of six, if they live in the city, can go to the dental office alone, and quite frequently better results are accomplished that way. However, do not take this to mean you are not welcome.

I invite you one and all for consultation or examination of your child. It costs you nothing to know the truth.

Very truly yours,

DR. S. RALPH DIPPEL
