COOPERATIVE BODY AFFILIATES WITH OREGON GROWERS ASSOCIATION

Umpqua Valley Fruit Union to Sell Equipment to Oregon Growers Cooperative Association.

The Umpqua Valley Fruit Union will cease to exist on January 1st, having voted unanimously, on Saturday, November 8th, at a stockholders' meeting, to sell their plant and equipment to the Oregon Growers Cooperative Association, and the Oregon Growers Packing Corporation, which are two bodies handling the fruit of the Oregon Growers Cooperative Association. The association is a selling body, selling at cost, and the packing corporation, which is affiliated with the association, handles the plants and packs the produce at cost. The plant at Roseburg is one of the very finest in Oregon, being strictly modern in every respect. The lot is ideally located, near the center of the city, along the Southern Pacific railroad. The building is of modern tile construction, with two full floors equipped with gravity lifts and automatic sizing machinery. The building is capable, when further equipped, of handling a tremendous tonnage of fruit.

J. O. Holt, of the Eugene association, who will be manager of the Oregon Growers Packing Corporation next year, which will operate all the buildings and packing plants handled by the Oregon Growers Cooperative Association, was present at the meeting, and told in some detail the methods used at Eugene, in handling their business, and in building up their enormous plant. C. I. Lewis, organization manager, was also present, to answer questions asked by various members of the Umpqua Valley Fruit Union. With 1800 acres already on the books, and with the members of the union showing great enthusiasm, the indications are that within the next two weeks a very large increase will be added to the acreage signed up in the Umpqua valley, on the books of the Oregon Growers Cooperative Association. The association, on November 1st, had over 12,000 acres, and it is now growing very rapidly.

The Roseburg plant is the first plant to be taken over by the association, and is probably the first of a dozen plants which will either be built, leased, or bought during the coming year, to handle the huge business of the association, which may reach the total figure of $5,000,000 this coming year.

H. R. Crawford, supervisor of census for this district, has announced that enumerators in the rural districts will be given four weeks in which to make their returns. Enumerators in most of the Lane county districts are to be paid $6 per day.
