DO YOU WANT MORE OF THE PROFITS TO STAY HERE?

The farmers are now making their plans for their next year's crops, what they shall plant and the acreage to be put into the different sorts. Many are turning from grains and stock to the berry and vegetable crops and small fruits. The market and general demand for both berries and fruits is increasing.

There is a need, however, for still better marketing facilities right here at Springfield. And there is room for more factories here. At present the farmers' and fruit growers' produce must be very largely marketed away from Springfield.

Why not have the market here and the benefits accrue to the farmers and the city itself?

It would bring more profit to the producer and to the city and the general business interests of this community. There is ample opportunity for a dehydrating plant here. It has been announced that 12½ cents will be paid for loganberries next season. If a dehydrating plant could be started here, the producer could save more of this good price for himself as well as helping a new industry to get started here.

WHAT BERRIES ARE DOING.

Berry growing has taken hold in Coos county, Oregon. People who never thought of ranching or gardening before are seeking plots of land for small fruit culture. Women in comfortable circumstances and men making good salaries are ready to put all their energy into the berry business. Ranchers are contracting to plant berry tracts and real estate firms are advertising berry land daily.

This is a good sample of the way the berry industry is developing the country. The Willamette valley, Oregon, is a coming berry growers' paradise.

the next president of the United States will not be either nominated or elected without the country knowing by his record something about what they can expect of him after he is elected.

TWO PICTURES.

It is said that the Apaches had five words for murder, not one for love.

A recent analysis of soviet literature is said to show ten words for destruction, only one for construction; six words for communism, only one for patriotism.

Bolshevism, according to linguistic analysis, yields many words meaning pain, agony, torment, fear, awe, sadness, hunger, tears, distress, misery, imprisonment, adversity, calamity, disaster and confiscation.

Bolshevistic writings also yield many words meaning bereavement, widow, orphan, doom, death, grave, and punishment.

We also find the following words abounding in soviet literature: revolt, masses, classes, seize, destroy, burn, demolish, blow up, and finally: "In the work of destruction we must be merciless."

Americanism abounds in such words as love, brotherhood, home, country, protection, sympathy, pity, fellow-feeling, compassion, charity, friend, country, God, progress, assistance, hope.

The conditions portrayed by words are as true to life as the negative is to that upon which the camera was focused. Take your choice. — Walla Walla, Wash., Bulletin.

CAN YOU BEAT IT?

A Coos county rancher kept $2000 hidden in an old shoe. He cleaned house and dumped all the rubbish in the deep Coos river, including $2000 in the shoe.

There is no longer any excuse for hoarding any sum for fear that it will be lost in banks.

The modern bank is the safest place in the world to keep money and valuables of any kind and incidents like this should bring money out of unsafe hiding places. Put your money in your home banks.

TO PROTECT FORESTS.

A series of practical suggestions for a national forest policy that probably will be brought to the early attention of the proper legislative authorities—both state and national—has just been prepared by the American Pulp and Paper association, comprising the leading manufacturers along those lines in the country.

Among principal recommendations are: A forest survey and land classification to determine what are present supplies of timber and areas which may be properly designated for watershed protection and as affording opportunity for future timber supply.

A great enlargement of the public policy of purchasing cut-over lands for extending reforestation on increased scale;

A much more vigorous and general extension of federal cooperation with the state in fire prevention;

Laws compelling timber owners to handle property and logging operations in such a way as to not become a public fire menace;

Encouragement by state to owner who wishes to grow timber on his land; or provision for public to acquire such land at a fair valuation and make it part of the system of public forests; immediate forest planting, on a large scale, upon all cut-over lands on which there is no hope of securing another crop through natural production.

Pulp and paper manufacturers, timber owners, lumbermen, and government officials seem entirely favorable to such a movement.

ADOPTS DEMOCRATIC METHODS.

Testifying before the joint congressional committee investigating postal salaries a negro laborer in the Louisville post office described the method in which he stood off his creditors with the remark: "Ah bin acting on de principle of payin' dem fust dat hollahs de loudest." He must have received his idea from the principle adopted by the War Risk Insurance in paying soldiers' claims.

Last Friday night Fay Ione Latham (Mrs. Leland Porter) reader and impersonator, aided by Mrs. Victoria Byerlee, head of vocal music department of the Eugene Bible university, Miss Ethel Danna, instrumental soloist, Guy Moshier, solosit, and Edwena Parsons and Vernita Morrison who rendered an instrumental duet, entertained a large audience at the Christian church. Mrs. Porter showed rare ability in her reading of "The Making of a Red Cross Flag," and her child impersonations were remarkable. Springfield needs more of these wholesome and high class entertainments. The Christian Endeavor deserves praise for their arranging such an entertainment.
